

Battle Looms On Milk Plan

Emergency Meetings Called
By Dairy Industry Chiefs

(See full story of report, Page 17.)

Vancouver Island Milk producers and distributors will hold emergency meetings Thursday to discuss the impact of recommendations made Tuesday by royal commissioner Mr. Justice J. V. Clyne.

Mr. Justice Clyne's report on B.C.'s milk industry contained recommendations which would completely overhaul the existing marketing set-up on the Island, and permit Mainland milk to be sold in Victoria stores at substantial price reductions.

Most Island officials contacted today refused comment on the weighty report, but others forecast a bitter battle to retain existing controls.

The royal commissioner recommended that two Vancouver milk distributors, Lucerne, a Safeway subsidiary, and Shannon, be allowed to haul milk in refrigerated trucks to the Victoria market.

Both distributors have promised price cuts of three and four cents on cartoned milk sold in retail stores.

Free Flow Advocated

Mr. Justice Clyne advocated a free flow of milk throughout the province, and said Vancouver Island producers, who now receive a higher price for their fluid milk sales by order of the B.C. Milk Board, should be prepared to compete on equal terms with Mainland dairymen.

Francis Norton, general manager, Northwestern Creamery, said the Clyne report "is bound to have an effect on the future." He said that "our present prices are based on what the milk board sets the price to the producer at."

But he said new methods of transportation, such as the fast ferries service across the Strait of Georgia that enables tank trucks to haul milk from the Mainland, are upsetting the existing situation.

"If they (Shannon and Lucerne) can bring it in here and sell it for less, it shows we are paying too high a price to the producer on Vancouver Island," said Mr. Norton.

Island producers now receive $5.90 for a 100-pound can of milk for the fluid market, while Mainland producers get $5.03. The 87-cent differential is to provide for the cost of shipping a can of milk from the Mainland.

Tank Trucks Cheaper

However, tank trucks hauling of milk on fast ferries is substantially cheaper than shipping individual cans of milk.

Mr. Norton said it "is a little early" to say what might happen to the milk industry on the Island as a result of the Clyne report.

Officials of Victoria's four large distributor organizations, Island Farms Dairies, Shepherds, Palm, and Northwestern, will meet Thursday to discuss the entire report.

Island producers also have a meeting scheduled for Thursday. Executive of the Vancouver Island Dairymen's Association will meet at Ladysmith to formulate a plan of action.

President Cecil Bulman, of Nanaimo, said it is possible the meeting will "make some plans as to how to bring our own recommendations before the provincial cabinet."

"I would imagine this report will have far-reaching effect on Island shippers," said Mr. Bulman.

Mr. Bulman said some small producers on the Island would be thrown out of business if the Fraser Valley product is allowed on the open market in Victoria.

The Vancouver Island Dairymen's Association includes over 200 producers, about 90 per cent of all shippers on the Island.

Mr. Bulman said the organization will fight the Clyne recommendation to allow Lucerne and Shannon to enter the Island market with mainland milk.

Charles E. Walls, of the B.C. Federation of Agriculture, said "it would be premature to make any statement on the Clyne Report until we can study it."

Meanwhile, Dan Nicholson, president of the Fraser Valley

Association, said:

"The industry hasn't been able to get together for four years. The whole matter is right back where it started before the hearing."

Grant Worth of Nicomen Island in the Fraser Valley said dropping licensing restrictions for distributors is a "step leading to chaos."

Disappointment that no recommendation was made for a fixed consumer price was expressed by other farmers.

U.S. Dollar

Tops Canadian

MONTREAL (CP) — The Canadian dollar today fell below par with the United States dollar for the first time in four years.

Bank officials said that the last time the Canadian dollar was below par was in March, 1952.

At the opening of banks the U.S. dollar was quoted at a premium of 1.32 per cent in terms of Canadian funds, which meant it was worth $1.00 1.32 Canadian.

In recent weeks the Canadian dollar has fluctuated close to the value of the U.S. dollar and for a brief period about "two weeks ago was at par with the American dollar."

Ship Afire in Storm

NEW YORK (UP) — Some 35 crewmen are fighting fire for their lives aboard an Italian coaster pitching in high seas and nearly hidden by snow flurries near the Grand Banks, some 1,200 miles north-east of New York, the coast guard reported today.

20 Degrees Predicted For Tonight

Gale, Snow Miss
City, Head South

Victoria's official thermometer climbed to a balmy 32 degrees today for the first time since the worst November cold spell in 56 years struck the city last Friday.

Weatherman William Mackie said he expected to see the thermometer reach 35 degrees at the warmest part of the afternoon, but predicted a minimum of 20 degrees tonight.

Snow that was predicted for Tuesday night stopped short of Victoria, Mr. Mackie said. A storm expected to bring higher temperatures and gale force winds brought a sprinkling of snow to Comox, "brushed" Victoria, then swept on south to its present position off the mouth of the Columbia River.

"The boundary of the Arctic air starts just off the Washington shore, curves outward to take in Vancouver Island, then turns toward the mainland to put the Queen Charlottes in warm air," he said.

CLOUDINESS
There will be variable cloudiness tonight and Thursday, Mr. Mackie said, and a maximum temperature Thursday of 35 degrees.

Best hope for a genuine change lies with a storm now off the Aleutian Islands, Mr. Mackie said. If it follows the track of Tuesday's storm it should affect Victoria by Friday, he said.

City plumbers and garage operators, meanwhile, are recovering from a "madhouse" weekend, although the plumbers expect another rash of business with thawing temperatures.

ON THE RUN
"People are going to find that garden taps that caused no inconvenience when they were frozen have split," said a spokesman for one plumbing firm.

"When they thaw, and water starts shooting all over the garden, we'll be on the run again," one large firm had three girls busy doing nothing but answering telephones.

"A good many of our calls were from people who were afraid they were out of fuel oil," said one of the girls. "In 90 per cent of the cases they were all right—just panicky."

Garage and service station operators who merely laughed at customers who wanted anything other than cold weather assistance, find their wrecking trucks standing still today for the first time since Friday.

"This cold spell is the worst we've ever had as far as damage and amount of work is concerned," said Dave Ewing, service manager of Wilson Motors Ltd. "Money is going to be short, because there are a lot of cracked blocks to fix."

B.C. Electric came through the cold spell unscathed with the exception of a drop in gas pressure in the west end of Esquimalt at 9 a.m. today. Full pressure was restored within an hour.

"We welcomed a few fresh faces on board our buses during the cold weather," a company spokesman said.

Overheated stoves and chimneys were responsible for most of the close to 60 fires recorded in Greater Victoria during the cold snap. City firemen attended five fires.

Campbell Again Cracks World Speedboat Mark

Hits 239.5 MPH
As Bluebird Jet
Averages 216.2

(Compiled from AP and UP Dispatches)

BOULDER CITY, Nev.—Britain's Donald Campbell broke his own world speedboat record today when he sent his jet-powered Bluebird II hurtling at 216.2 miles an hour over the waters of Lake Mead.

Campbell set the old record of 202.32 mph on Lake Ullswater, in England last July in the same jet-propelled boat.

The Bluebird was clocked at 239.5 mph on one run over a measured distance of one kilometre and 192.9 on the second leg of the test.

In his record run last summer Campbell sent the Bluebird hurtling along at approximately 189 miles an hour on one run and 215 miles an hour on the other.

Today, on a slightly choppy course on Lake Mead, the Bluebird made two passes over the course, which measures five-eighths of a mile.

BAD LUCK OVERCOME
His victory was not only over speed itself, but over a series of mishaps and bad luck that has beset his venture since he came to Nevada over a month ago to attempt to beat his own record.

The 34-year-old speedboat racer's father, Sir Malcolm Campbell, was killed in a 1919 speed try while still holding the water record he established in 1939 in the Bluebird I.

Before today's attempt Campbell vowed he was "going to make it, or bust."

The two and one-half-ton jet hydroplane, in which the young Campbell became the first man to shatter the "water barrier," was dismantled and flown to this country from London early in October. With it came Campbell's five-man engineering and maintenance crew.

SPEEDBOAT SANK
Misadventures began as soon as the craft was assembled and put on the water. Engine flame-outs occurred. Winds blew up choppy waters to postpone his runs. At one point the Bluebird II sank and had to be hooked with grappling irons and towed ashore under water, raised and completely overhauled.

Even today the record of misfortune continued, adding petty thieves this time to the list of obstacles Campbell overcame. During the night, some body dredged up the five-eighths of a mile of under water wire connecting the two official timing devices, and made off with it.

Campbell's crew rushed to Boulder City this morning as the weather cleared and gave signs of permitting a record assault. They bought new wire, laid it and the run was on.

Priest-Killing Case
Now in Jury's Hands
BRANDON (CP) — A Court of Queen's Bench jury retired at noon to decide the fate of three Quebec youths charged with murder in the gun-slaying of a 44-year-old Roman Catholic priest Jan. 9.

The jury retired after Mr. Justice Samuel Freedman completed his charge which lasted one hour and 55 minutes.

Mr. Justice Freedman instructed the jury that it must bring in three verdicts, one for each of the accused.

Saanich Residence
Saved by Firemen
A fire that broke out just before noon at the home of Mrs. J. G. Lawrie, 5557 Alderley, caused minor damage to the base of a chimney and burned up one wall, Saanich firemen reported.

Trucks attended from the No. 1 and Elk Lake fire halls. Mrs. Lawrie's two children, Linda, three, and John, one year, were with her at the time.

Today's Question:
Are you in favor of annual civic grants to the Arts Centre, Victoria Symphony Orchestra and the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals?

—Mrs. J. Mc.
MAYORALTY CANDIDATE
P. B. SCURRAH:
"I think we should support the symphony and the Arts Centre with modest grants. They are both cultural and educational institutions. The city has reached the stage where these cultural agencies should be recognized."

"With regard to the SPCA, the city should do away with the pound and merge it with the SPCA. Then pay the SPCA the $5,000 which it now pays for pound operating costs. A third of the cost is now recovered from Oak Bay. That could continue. The service would probably be more efficient."

MAYORALTY CANDIDATE
W. A. SCOTT:
"SPCA grants—not until our aged citizens are treated with the loving kindness and consideration bestowed on our pets, should even a nickel be given to the SPCA."

"Art Centre grant—not until city fathers' arts for producing and saving money for the taxpayers match the artistic value of our cultural artists, should grants be made."

"Symphony Orchestra grant—not until harmony and union at City Hall is as pleasant and inspiring as that of our

Big Four Wind Up Without Agreement

GENEVA (AP) — The Big Four foreign ministers' conference ended today with Russia and the Western powers more deeply divided than ever over the vital problems of German reunification and European security.

Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov, chairman of the final session, brought the conference to a close at about 6:40 p.m.

In almost 60 hours of debate during a period of three weeks, the Big Four failed to make substantial progress on a single major issue before them. The Western ministers blamed an unexpected hardening of Soviet policy for the breakdown. Molotov blamed the West.

The four began their talks here Oct. 27 in the warm glow of hope created by the "spirit of Geneva" which flourished during and after the Big Four "summit" meeting here in July.

NO FUTURE PLANS
They ended without agreement even on plans to meet again. The possibility of another conference was left up to future negotiations through diplomatic channels.

The final meeting was devoted to a round of summary speeches after the ministers had agreed on a communique, which merely confirmed their lack of agreement and said that each would report to his chief.

Macmillan said the West and Russia now are looking at each other across a "great divide." Yet he was not altogether discouraged.

"I feel there are many new forces in operation in the Communist world and in the satellite countries which they control. All this makes me wonder whether there is not something in a phrase I heard recently which said 'the Soviet government fears our friendship more than our enmity.'"

Before the closing speeches, the Western ministers had turned down flatly a statement by Molotov which he had proposed on European security. Dulles said that if the ministers approved it, it would have given "a false impression" of agreement here.

The action was noted by Molotov "with regret."

South Korea Asks
Truce Be Ended
UNITED NATIONS (UP) — President Syngman Rhee's republic of Korea government called upon the United Nations today to declare that the Korean truce is void.

Ambassador Ben C. Limb, South Korean UN observer, also asked the general assembly to demand withdrawal of Chinese Communist troops from Korean soil. He estimated their numbers at almost one million.

FACES TRIAL FOR MURDER

John Gilbert Graham, 23, baby-faced playboy will be tried by state of Colorado on murder charge, for planting explosive which killed 44 persons aboard a United Air Lines plane Nov. 1. Denver district attorney will ask death in the gas chamber for Graham. Graham placed dynamite bomb in luggage of his mother with hope of collecting $37,500 insurance. Graham is seen being led to jail by detectives.

GETS A SHOCK
He plugged in the hammer—and it went up in smoke. The ham's voltage was 220, while the hammer's was 110.

Shocked, scorched and dismayed, but determined to salvage something for his trouble, Willey shook down all the desks in the place and came out with precisely 17 bob in silver.

Wearily loading his tools he started to pedal home. But a prowler came along and the police became interested in why a man should be carrying 153 pounds of tools on a bicycle in a furtive manner.

With good behavior Willey will be back digging up those streets around the middle of 1960.

'SELDOM IN THE ANNALS OF CRIME ...'

Ditchdigger Willey Got Nine Years for 17 Bob

LONDON (AP) — Bernard Willey, who police said nursed dreams of becoming a master criminal, was sentenced Tuesday to nine years for a bank robbery that went sour.

Seldom in the annals of crime has so much work been done by one man for so little—that is, 17 shillings.

And he didn't even get to keep that.

The story as unfolded in court: Willey, 30-year-old pick-and-shovel man, recently decided it was silly to keep on digging up streets when a keen-witted fellow with a flair for taking pains could use the same muscles for cracking safes.

He decided a bank would be the most fruitful target. Reasoning that such a break would raise a certain amount of noise, Willey toured around on his bicycle until he found the Mitcham road branch of Lloyd's Bank hard by a busy subway station.

There was so much noise there a man could hardly hear himself think, let alone the sound of a bank being burgled. Next, Willey got a job with a building contractor and learned to use a hacksaw, electric hammer and various other tools.

Ready at last, he broke into the contractor's warehouse and loaded up 155 pounds of equipment and set off on his bicycle for the big killing.

At the bank, Willey's hacksaw went easily through the bars of the rear window. Once inside, he was satisfied that the shell of the concrete strong-room would yield easily to his electric hammer.

WANTS TO TRY AGAIN

Test Flier Survives Supersonic Bailout

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Test pilot George Smith, the first pilot to bail out of a plane travelling supersonically and live, now wants to fly a plane at 2,000 mph.

After six months in hospital, Smith is ready for another assignment. He has passed the civil aeronautics administration physical examination regaining his commercial flying certificate.

Smith recalls very little of his "big jump." His story was told Monday for the first time. It had been classified as secret.

Faster than the speed of sound, the fighter plane blasted downward at an 80-degree angle. Its controls were locked. This was on Feb. 26, 1955.

The 31-year-old pilot turned off his fuel, opened the speed brakes and pulled his helmet visor over his eyes. With his right hand he pulled up on the armrest of his seat, automatically ejecting the canopy. Two seconds more and it would have been too late.

He lost consciousness and didn't come to until five days later in a hospital, where he stayed six months.

It was estimated Smith was subjected to a decelerative force of 40 times the pull of gravity as his parachute snapped open. There was bleeding in all parts of the body as the pull increased. George's weight from its 215 pounds to the equivalent force of 8,000 in a split second.

His arms flailed with such force after he left the plane that his wristwatch, gloves and signet ring were shaken off. His knee joints were loosened. For several days Smith was blind because of bleeding in the eyeballs and damage to the retina. The whites of his eyes were bloodshot solid red.

At 35,000 feet altitude above the ocean the controls jammed on his F-100 Super Sabre. George ejected himself and the rush of air going by at nearly 800 miles an hour made a tremendous noise which he described as sounding like a continuous barrage of heavy guns.

It is believed he bailed out at about 6,500 feet. In just two seconds more his parachute wouldn't have had time to open.

Los Angeles businessman Art Berkell was fishing off the southern California coast.

He saw a geyser of white and foaming water shoot up about 200 yards from his fishing cruiser. A limp figure floated from the end of a torn parachute.

Berkell had been a navy air-sea rescue man in the Second World War. Smith became his 27th rescuee.

The test pilot's shoes and socks were gone. His clothes were in ribbons. He was bleeding from cuts on his forehead, chin and feet.

At first Smith was in so severe a shock that his pulse was barely audible. After months of treatment he has gained back to 175 pounds, his eyes remain a bit sensitive to flare and there is a slight lack of color perception. But his vision is again 20-20. Damage to his liver means he can never touch anything containing alcohol.

Smith's bail-out gave the air force and medicine valuable information.

What does the test pilot want to do now? He wants to fly a plane at 2,000 miles an hour.

A more recent case of bailing out at supersonic speed was reported last week by the British air ministry. FO Henry Holland, 22, an RAF pilot, said his jet fighter went into a dive at 40,000 feet over the North sea and with his speed at 700 miles an hour he was unable to pull out. He parachuted at 10,000 feet and landed at sea four miles off the coast.

A target-towing tug rescued him. Attendants at Ipswich Hospital said he suffered fractures of the arm and pelvis and two black eyes.

U.S. History Pays Off For Ex-Czech

NEW YORK (UPI)—A native of Czechoslovakia who became an expert in American history while studying for his citizenship examinations, won $16,000 on a television program Tuesday night by answering questions about U.S. land purchases.

Steven Frolich said he would like to use any money he wins on the CBS program, "The $64,000 Question," to help bring displaced persons to this country.

He was given the dates of five historic land purchases made by the United States and asked to identify them.

He correctly said the Louisiana Purchase was made from France in 1803. Florida was purchased from Spain in 1819, the Gadsden Purchase of parts of New Mexico and Arizona was from Mexico in 1853, Alaska from Russia in 1867, and the Virgin Islands from Denmark in 1917.

Frolich, a 39-year-old seed salesman from Princeton, N.J., also correctly named each president at the time of each purchase although he was not asked to do so.

He returns next week to decide whether to keep the $16,000 or try for $32,000.

Ontario Township Loves That 'Lycio'

NORTH BAY, Ont. (CP)—A small green plant called the lycio-podium is bringing dividends to residents in nearby Phelps township.

Lycio, as it is known locally, is used in arranging wreaths, corsages and other floral decorations. Pickers make up to $200 a year gathering it from the woods where it grows wild.

The plant, gathered each spring and fall, is processed by firms in southern Ontario and shipped to several parts of the world.

Local pickers say there is enough lycio to last for years.

Education Minister Ray Williston will officially open a Craigflower PTA fall fair at Craigflower School Friday at 8 p.m.

The fair will feature stalls of home produce and handicrafts and there will be a white elephant sale. The evening will conclude with games, dancing and refreshments.

MRS. WOODWARD TAKES TURN FOR WORSE

NEW YORK (UPI)—The condition of Mrs. William Woodward, socialite mother of two sons who shot and killed her husband Oct. 20 when she mistook him for a burglar, took a "turn for the worse" Sunday night, it was reported today.

Mrs. Woodward has been confined to Doctors Hospital with shock since the shooting of her husband on their plush Long Island estate.

Her physician, Dr. John Prutting, said Tuesday night that she had developed a fever, caused by an intestinal virus. Visitors were barred from her room.

Hospital officials early today said only "there is nothing new to report."

Toronto Royalists Flip TV Lids At Hope Quips on Royal Romance

(CP and BUF Dispatches) TORONTO—The CBC said today it hears some television viewers objected to jokes made Tuesday night by American comedian Bob Hope about Princess Margaret and her call-off romance with Group Capt. Peter Townsend.

"Only one complaint reached our switchboard," a spokesman said, "but we understand one newspaper here had a number."

Hope made his quips during an hour-long television show from Hollywood, sponsored in Canada by General Motors of Canada. The program was relayed by the CBC in Toronto to some eastern Canada TV stations.

Hope's jokes included a request to "let our Margaret have a crack at Peter now" and a comment that Group Capt. Townsend "should have known better than to try to play the Palace. I never could."

Hope said he was leaving for England soon and expected to see Princess Margaret's wet handkerchiefs hanging on the line, and added that it was the "second time" the Townsend plan had been turned down.

CBC and General Motors officials both said they hadn't seen the Hope script. But CBC chairman A. Davidson Dunton said he "would look into the matter right away."

GM's Canadian president, William A. Wecker, said he was mainly interested in the commercial and didn't notice anything objectionable in the show. He explained that GM had no control over the content of the show but said it probably would not have been carried in Canada if GM had seen the script in advance.

MANILA (UP)—Suicide today ended the war for an emaciated Japanese marine who evaded capture in the Philippine jungles for 11 years, convinced that Japan would win the war and he would return home in triumph.

Marine Corp. Noboru Kinoshita strangled himself in a prison stockade. During his years of jungle life he lived on lizards, rats, wild monkeys, frogs and fruits. Taken prisoner Nov. 2 while raiding a sweet potato patch, Kinoshita said he thought the war was still going on and daily begged Filipino police to kill him. He grew almost hysterical in demands to die "honorably" and not to be held prisoner and finally resolved his problem with a rope.

55% of Deaths Here Due to Heart, Cancer

One out of two deaths in this area in the last quarter was due to either heart disease or cancer.

Heart disease and cancer were responsible for 55 per cent of 373 deaths recorded in greater Victoria during July, August and September.

A quarterly report issued today by the Victoria-Esquamalt union board of health included figures for Oak Bay, Saanich, Central Saanich and the unorganized area. It recorded 129 deaths due to heart ailments and 76 due to cancer.

Here are other statistics taken from the report: Polio struck 15 persons in the area, aged between two and 45 years. There were no deaths.

Israel Requests U.S. to Supply Arms Shipments

Pled Will Receive Consideration

WASHINGTON (AP)—Israel today asked the United States for arms to help counterbalance Communist weapons shipments to Egypt and got a promise of consideration.

Ambassador Abba Eban of Israel delivered a formal note urgently requesting U.S. weapons at cut-rate prices, if possible. He said similar requests were being made to other western nations.

Eban declined to say what weapons he requested or how big a transaction his government proposed.

In a formal statement after Eban's visit, the state department said: "The Israeli Ambassador was informed that the request would receive consideration by the various agencies of the United States government in the light of American policies including the tripartite American, British, French declaration of 1950."

The U.S. has previously offered to join others in guaranteeing the borders of both Israel and her Arab neighbors if they agree on the boundaries and settle other long-standing disputes. President Eisenhower renewed that offer Tuesday night, but neither side has yet accepted.

American officials believe that the immediate guarantee Israel is asking, in advance of any Israeli-Arab agreement, is unnecessary even though Egypt is building its armed forces with quantities of Russian-made tanks, planes, artillery and other weapons.

COVERED IN 1950 PLEDGE

Israel's security from sudden aggression, in their view, is already taken care of through an American-British-French declaration on the Middle East issued in May, 1950. This pledges the three governments to "immediately take action, both within and outside the United Nations" against anyone who seeks to violate frontiers or armistice lines in the area.

'Enemy' Planes Evade Radar

FORT POLK, La. (AP)—The set off this mock war with their United States has learned a sharp and realistic lesson about the vulnerability of its cities to atomic attack by jet bombers.

A comparative handful of swift bombers, streaking inland at low altitude, evaded an elaborate radar warning system. When the aggressor planes intercept them.

Secondary Industries

MR. DREW, RETURNING RATHER cautiously to traditional Conservative policy, has been leaving the impression in his recent speeches that the secondary manufacturing industries of Canada are at something like a standstill.

The great basic industries, exporting raw or semi-raw materials are flourishing, Mr. Drew admits (with the exception of grain). But, improbably, selling our unmanufactured materials to the world, we are failing to manufacture them at home for the benefit of our own people.

That has always been the main thesis of the Conservative Party in domestic politics and the foundation of its tariff policy in office. What are the current facts?

A few weeks ago Mr. J. Douglas Gibson, the distinguished economist of the Bank of Nova Scotia, analyzed these facts before a convention of American businessmen in Chicago. Mr. Gibson is no politician, and is interested only in the hard statistics of our economy. Summarizing the latest statistics, Mr. Gibson says this:

"I do not wish to leave the impression that Canadian growth is mainly a matter of big resource projects. In fact, the increase of production and employment in the secondary industries and the service trade has been several times as large as the corresponding increases in the basic industries. The population figures tell the same story. During the postwar period the great increase in population has been in the big urban centres and not on the frontier."

That statement from a non-partisan economist would seem to destroy at once the legend that our secondary industries are lagging behind the nation's general growth. Actually, says Mr. Gibson, they are moving ahead much faster than the basic industries of timber, minerals, agriculture and fisheries.

Mr. Gibson adds another statement which the public (and Mr. Drew) ought to consider carefully: "The importance of the natural resource development lies in the generating force that it has given to the whole economy. We have had a physical as well as a technological frontier and this has given vitality to our development. It has resulted in a large and growing demand for capital equipment, for transportation and public utilities. It has given marked impetus to the manufacturing industries, especially to those making capital goods, it has attracted immigration and, through the widening economic opportunities it has opened up, it has provided a favorable environment for rapid population growth."

At another point Mr. Gibson notes that the growth in our population has recently been at the rate of something between 2½ and 3 per cent per year. Not many countries anywhere, not even in Asia or Latin America, have been growing as rapidly as Canada.

For example, the recent increase in India and Japan, two nations noted for fertility, has been at the rate of barely 1½ per cent, about half the Canadian figure. The American rate of 1¾ per cent has been well below ours.

Mr. Drew's plan to foster more secondary industries by import restrictions of one kind or another—at the expense of the consumers—no doubt will be the subject of intensive debate until the next national election. Meanwhile, before this debate becomes confused by election slogans, it will be useful for the public to remember the actual facts of our situation.

Apart from the grain industry—the victim of a worldwide surplus—our economy does not appear to be in need of any drastic cure by Mr. Drew.

The Clean-Up Job

AS USUALLY FOLLOWS ANY violent domestic upheaval, Argentina is going through a post-revolutionary instability in which rival claimants are contesting for power. This development adds further complications to problems already of formidable size. Deposed dictator Juan Peron left a sorry financial and economic mess, the full details of which are only now coming to light.

Apart from the job of discovering and righting the ex-President's shortcomings, any new Government has the further problem of selling the reforms to the people. For such is the economic state of Argentina the reforms demand a program of austerity that will not be popular.

The country is basically a wealthy and prosperous land. It was so before Dictator Peron, it was so during the lush Second World War days, when Argentine beef and wheat commanded high prices. And it was so, to a certain extent, while Peron depleted the reserves with social security benefits, Government-set wage rates, and excessive grants to welfare and labor organizations designed to promote the popularity of the regime.

The Government treasury and the economic reserves of the country could stand only so much of this high living. Ultimately inflation and other ills took their toll. Today the prime requirement is to restore a measure of stability, but, like most cures, it may not prove very palatable to the people.

In addition to the financial situation, which was further weakened by administrative corruption now coming to light, there are many other problems to meet.

While the Mayor Blocks and Wonders

WHILE MAYOR HARRISON obstructs the new zoning by-law and wonders out loud "whether town planning should be a continuing thing" a large part of this continent seems to have resolved that question in the affirmative.

Such is the impression created by the annual meeting of the American Society of Planning Officials who convened with the Community Planning Association of Canada in Montreal the other day.

They learned from competent speakers that Canada's spurt of city growth began some 20 years later than that of the United States and is now progressing at an even faster rate.

They were told, too, by Canada's Minister of Public Works that sometime next year a family would move into the millionth home erected in Canada since the war.

Town planning, Mr. Robert Winters, the minister, told them, is not a theoretical affair; it is concerned with saving money for citizens, making life pleasanter and simpler.

The urban development of Canada—and it is particularly evident in Greater Victoria—makes it imperative that cities should know where industries can best be located and where roads will be needed 10 years from now.

These are matters to which the Victoria and the Greater Victoria regional town planners have addressed themselves. From the former's studies has emerged, as one feature, the new zoning by-law which is meeting opposition from the mayor in City Council.

The essential nature of town planning is not a matter of speculation to those who have concerned themselves with the question. Nor is it a temporary issue. It is not something to be left to drift like a rudderless model on a toy yacht pond.

No one knows that better than members of Victoria's Town Planning Commission, whose chairman has resigned to draw pointed attention to the situation created by Mayor Harrison.

The Bird Watchers

Chips

BY DAVID BROCK

AS I must have told you once or twice before, the late Professor Raleigh divided books into four classes. In descending order of merit they are: wild lives, tame lives, letters, other books. Mind you, he was not always wholly serious. The playwright and novelist, Charles Morgan, being always wholly serious, counts this a great fault in Raleigh. Anyhow, you can tell Raleigh thought a lot of letters. Except when he was contradicting himself (to drive Mr. Morgan wild) . . . for example, he wrote to Mrs. Walter Crum and said "As for letters I can't write them. Nor can you. At least you won't. Why do Women of Genius never write long letters? I suppose they are after Bigger Game. If you think of it, Mme. de Sevigne and other famous letterists were really a pack of governesses, after all. Pensive starved people."

HE not only preferred reading letters to reading ordinary books, but preferred writing them. "I wonder if you find as I do that writing attracts you less as the years pass. I would rather talk. Then letters: last of all, books. Education has taken the fine bloom off the writing of books." Mind you, he ran across difficulties in writing letters. For example, the difficulty of knowing if the recipient is really listening: "I have lots to say but I can't begin, letter-writing is a kind of spiritualism, you knock the table a lot and concentrate your mind, but you can't be sure that George is really there, and he's very unlike his old self when he just sat about and was devilish comfortable. So I simply can't carry on the scene, if you won't scratch three times to mean 'Yes'."

Here is another bit about the difficulty of letters: "It is awful for you to get no letters." (He is writing to a soldier.) "I am a poor hand at them; it's such a violent job for the imagination to jump right across and begin. All good letters, except where they are bare assurances of affection, are a kind of soliloquy, like a gentleman suffering from nightmare and intruding upon a busy office. He is much valued no doubt."

HE said other things about letters but I can't find them right now. Anyhow, he thought a lot about letters and appreciated them. Of course he was talking about letters among friends. I am sorry that nothing is recorded of his thoughts about Letters to the Editor, which are another branch of literature. A very curious branch. Sometimes they are a dead give-away of the writer which is always interesting. And sometimes, if you know anything of the writer, it is interesting to see how he has disguised himself and the facts. Occasionally the give-away and the disguise are blended in one letter, as in Letters to the Editor written by Sir Thomas Beecham.

PLEASE don't think I am being snooty and superior about Letters to the Editor. I have written lots myself and hope to write lots more, as soon as my children get past their most sensitive age . . . at the moment they don't care to be known as the children of That Crank . . . they share the common delusion that only the deluded write letters to newspapers. Naturally, the deluded DO WRITE. But that doesn't mean everyone who writes must be deluded. I was once introduced to a man who taught one of my sons. He said "Ah yes . . . Mr. Brock," and gave me a horrible sneer. It was a most skillful blend of amused contempt and timid loathing. (This sneer was probably his sole accomplishment.) I claimed the sneer was because of my son, but my son claimed it was because I wrote letters to the papers.

ANYWAY, I am just resting at present. Reading letters instead of writing them. And last night I ran across a dilly of the first water. What might be described as a lulu with no strings attached. Here it is in full:

"Sir—The season of fog is upon us. Fog! Is it not one of our greatest blessings in disguise?"

"It penetrates (almost a brick wall), seeps down to the very roots, gives color to the daffodils, decides the strawberry crop!"

"It brings out the sun . . . and where there is fog there are fish."

"Yes, there is the law of averages. The greater the blessing, the greater the sacrifice."

"In the case of fog, it is human life. May I quote from Holy Writ: 'And there went up a mist from the earth and watered the whole face of the ground.' (Gen. 2:6)."

"VETERAN'S WIFE"

ANY way you look at it, that is quite a letter. It can stand being read a dozen times over. I have read it two dozen times, and I still don't know what connection there is between veterans' wives and the requirements of the fog in the matter of human sacrifice in order to make us more strawberries and fish. I am very fond of mysticism, and of dark sayings. Good old smoky sayings, because where there is smoke there are fish. Kippers, in fact.

Forests for the Public on Weekends Only?

(Fifth of a series discussing the H. R. MacMillan brief to the Sloan Commission on Forestry.)

THE total travellers in Forest Management Licences 20 and 21 (those held by MacMillan & Bloedel Limited on Vancouver Island's West Coast) in one season are conservatively estimated to be 6,000 to 7,500. Mr. H. R. MacMillan stated in his testimony to the Sloan commission.

"The trend," he added, "appears to be rapidly upward."

"This constitutes an unreasonable fire risk on the licensee . . . Nevertheless, Government refuses to assist in controlling travellers through Forest Management Licences except in short periods of general closure."

In these terms Mr. MacMillan raises the important issue of the public's right of access to forests.

In the Forest Management Licences contracted to MacMillan & Bloedel Ltd., in the Alberni area, he had explained, there are 471 miles of company logging and access roads. About 100 miles are added therein each year and every new mile of road is, in his opinion, an added fire risk.

The company, he says, co-operates with fish and game associations to allow hunting and fishing privileges on company land. Members receive passes from the association concerned for weekends and holidays only.

DOES NOT CHOOSE TO RUN, BUT—

In declining to make myself available as an aldermanic candidate again this year, may I be permitted to make a few observations?

Is there sufficient appreciation in Victoria of some basic mayoral and aldermanic qualifications, including studies and experience elsewhere of important national interests and developments in relation to civic affairs?

Apart from the necessity of ability, integrity, and initiative, together with a deep sense of responsibility and proof of loyalty to Canada, there are fundamental principles and worthy aims in city council service, as in civic administration, that should embrace sound concepts of Canadian citizenship, national health and welfare, cultural interests, immigration problems, housing, town-planning, etc.

How many councillors study and evaluate civic affairs and progress reports of other cities?

In short, the need is for greater vision, some national experience, plus sound judgment in civic affairs, which a few city council members and candidates have been known to lack.

Business experience, platform performance and promises, extensive advertising, or the apparent popularity of a candidate, are too often misleading electioneering factors. It is my firm conviction—and many agree—that all candidates seeking election in the City Council should be required to complete a carefully prepared application form or a questionnaire. Candidates brief answers to pertinent, leading questions to be read by Chairman or heard extemporaneously from candidate (if oral answers to questionnaire) at election meetings, and possibly published in the press for comparisons.

As in the case of Civil Service and business firm applications and interviews for positions of trust and responsibility, the voting public would thus be better able to judge each candidate's qualifications and experience, apart from the speeches, to faithfully discharge council duties and responsibilities, and possibly form a better impression of his prospective co-operative efforts and efficiency, if elected.

GOOD LUCK IRENE

I don't think ever in my life I have enjoyed reading of the success of anyone, as I did when I read the report of Irene Byatt in our local press.

After the breaking up of Mr. Basil Horsfall's Victoria Grand Opera Society, about the best thing that ever came to Victoria, B.C., I joined Professor Hoffman's choir. It was there I first heard Irene Byatt sing with the rest of us. I said to someone sitting beside me, that girl has a wonderful voice, and she can afford the right training she will go far in Grand Opera. I also said the same to the professor afterwards. I believe the professor was her second teacher. I am so glad that a way was made for her. With her very hard work and her stick-to-it ability she will now go far, even though I know she had at least one critic whom I was told did not think so here.

It is all the most pleasing because

"I'M SORRY I BUSTED YOUR GREAT-GREAT GRANDMA'S VASE, MRS. WILSON. DON'T TELL HER I DID IT, HUH?"

Irene is one of our own native British Columbia daughters. Need I say more? I don't think I ever lived in a place where there was, and still is much jealous criticism of singers and others with talent. This is not so much from Canadians as it is from those who think no one but the British, particularly the English, can do anything.

(MRS.) ADELAIDE MARSHALL.

WHY THE HULLABALOO?

Why all this talk about banning fireworks and Halloween?

Just because a few individuals behave like morons, is this any reason for depriving more than twelve thousand children of the pleasure of setting off a few firecrackers or visiting from house to house? And for that matter, how many of the men reading this letter can say in all honesty that they always behaved themselves on Halloween as if a policeman were watching every move they made?

The children of Victoria today have few empty lots left in which to play. In return we have given them a mere handful of private backyard playgrounds, and certainly not enough public ones. Take Halloween away from them too, and we are one step nearer to turning out a new and even more rebellious band of juvenile delinquents than that produced by the war.

Instead of complaining or banning, why not be more tolerant and considerate of the little ones who go from door to door, even if they do pull a cap gun on us once in a while, or very occasionally toss a firecracker at us? Soon enough the older, wild ones will grow up, and settle down to become indignant tax payers like the rest of us.

It's the younger children who must be permitted the same privileges and pleasures that we enjoyed when we were that age, and Halloween is one of these.

CUTTING DEMOCRATIC ROOTS

The warden of Oakalla, addressing Victoria school teachers, in rather parrot-like fashion reiterates the wearisome rubbish re delinquency that has so long and successfully fooled the people.

He says goodness is the result of being brought up in happy surroundings—thus ingeniously blaming the parents.

When I was a kid there was no child-delinquency problem, neither were youngsters happier than now.

The public should ask itself the following questions:

If powerful influences considered that democratic culture must be rooted, as a prelude to introduction of fascism, how would they go about it?

Would God-given parental authority be debunked, teachers directed to poke their noses into private homes, 13-year-old girls told to paint their lips and chase the boys, hoodlums injected into music and insanity into art, and even the lowly toilet transformed into a destroying angel?

Choice of 44 Shows

LONDON—If you were deciding to go to the theatre tonight, here's a sampling of what's available. There are 44 shows on 12 musicals, seven variety shows and 25 plays.

If you like a mystery, there are four of them on, two by Agatha Christie—the long-running "Mousetrap" and "Spider's Web," the one she wrote for film star Margaret Lockwood's return to the stage.

Reyburn

Maggie Lockwood, who rather faded from the public spotlight after getting international fame with the movie, "The Wicked Lady," is very much in the news again, partly because of her first film for some time—"Cast a Dark Shadow." She's excellent in that film, incidentally, playing a disreputable barmaid brilliantly.

Three top-notch English playwrights are on display. You can see John van Druten's "Bell, Book and Candle," Terence Rattigan's new offering, "Separate Tables," which is doing enthusiastic business, and J. B. Priestley's latest play, "Mr. Kettle and Mrs. Moon," about the scandalous results from a couple having a bit of middle-aged love.

These big names of the London stage are all at present in work. . . . Rex Harrison is in "Bell, Book and Candle," but wife Lili Palmer has pulled out of the show (no questions asked). . . . Eric Portman stars in "Separate Tables." . . . Yvonne Arnaud is still flogging that overdone French accent of hers in a play called "Mrs. Willis."

Gordon Barker (there's an old-timer!) has come back in a comedy, "Small Hotel," which is likely to go out of business any time now. . . . Clive Brook (another voice from the past) is doing his best to hold together a French adaptation, "Count of Croyambard." . . . Nigel Patrick is scoring in "Remarkable Mr. Pennyfather," about harassed parent of unruly youngsters. . . . John Clements, with wife Kay Hammond, which is good news to many, stars in "The Shadow of Doubt."

In the musical field the three big U.S. imports are "The King and I," "Kismet" and "The Pajama Game," and Johnnie Ray is heading a variety bill at the Hippodrome. (The police have told Johnnie to control those screaming fans of his—or else.)

Apart from that American influx, the musical shows are predominantly English. Each of these comes beloved of the English has his own revue running—Jimmy Edwards, Norman Wisdom, Benny Hill and Bud Flanagan with his Crazy Gang.

Dear old Punch has zipped itself up so much these days as to put on a show of its own called "The Punch Revue" with skits and lyrics by contributors. "The Boy Friend" still goes strong—must have a beard by now—and its creator, Sandy Wilson, has scored again with a musical about comic books, called "The Buccaneer." A. P. Herbert (with Vivian Ellis handling the music) has turned his famous book, "The Water Gypsies," into a musical.

And if you can't get in at any of these shows—which is highly probable if you haven't booked ahead—you can still wind up at the Windmill Theatre, where, Canadian ex-servicemen who served in England will be interested to know, the girls still grin and bare it.

YOUR HEALTH

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

Facing Unpleasant Facts

Dr. Alvarez is Executive Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic and Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation.

RECENTLY, W. Richard Miles sent me a copy of his book, "Four Steps to Better Hearing." This little volume can be of great help to anyone who needs advice as to loss of hearing. There are many hints as to the choosing of a hearing aid, and how, later, to get adjusted to its use. As he says, when one walks out of the store with an aid, one must not expect to get perfect satisfaction immediately. Often one has first to rule out the many sounds that one does not want to hear. Mr. Miles advises that the person try out several hearing aids before he buys. It is much cheaper to use an apparatus made with transistors instead of tubes. With the tiny transistors the instrument is very small, and it is cheap to run. The part that goes into the ear is getting so small that it can hardly be seen. Some "pick-ups" now go on to the end of the bow of a pair of spectacles. One firm even has an apparatus all of which goes in the ear.

Dr. Alvarez

Mr. Miles points out that when one puts on a hearing aid in a store one is trying it under the best possible conditions. When the person walks with it out into the street, the noises there encountered may be so bad that he will feel much upset. From the host of sounds he may find it hard to pick out the few that he wants.

DISBELIEF IN HONESTY

I feel sad when I get letters from persons who, when they do not agree with me as to something that I have said in this column (some statement which perhaps is based on much reading of papers by experts) attack me with insulting accusations. They accuse me of having sold out to some business firm, or of having written as I did because I own stock in some company. For instance, because I believe in the adding of minute amounts of fluorine to the water supply of certain cities, in which the fluorine content is too low, I am accused of working for "the aluminum trust"; or because, a while ago, I recommended that dogs be protected from rabies with a vaccine, I received a number of obscenely-written letters accusing me of having sold myself to the makers of vaccines.

How I would hate to be so constituted that, when I saw a man in the public eye taking a certain stand, my only thought would be, "What is he getting out of it financially?" or "By whom has he been bought?" I may be naive, but I confess that usually my first thought about such a man's stand is admiration for his courage in taking it.

Long experience as a physician has caused me to feel sorry for those many persons who cannot recognize a friendly, honest and disinterested person the minute they see him. Many a time, when I have gone out of my way to try to help a person in trouble, I have been distressed to sense that he distrusts me; he was wondering what sinister motive I had, and where the gyp was going to come!

Fortunately, most people are friendly and kind and good. The world is full of such; one meets them everywhere. One day in Europe, in a city strange to me, when I had lost my way, a passer-by insisted on walking with me several blocks to show me how to get to my destination.

A POSSIBLE GREAT DISASTER

A while ago, in Kentucky, an epileptic who was fortunate enough to find an employer who was kindly and willing to give him a job, apparently had a seizure. He fell against a hot stove and was burned. Now, I read that one of the courts has decided that he must be given workmen's compensation.

To many persons, this apparent injustice to the employer will seem to be harmless enough, but to others it will seem like a great disaster. It surely will be a great disaster to all epileptics who want to work, if it means that now employers and insurance carriers will have to refuse employment to all men and women who are likely at times to fall and get hurt. If I were an epileptic, I would be raising all the money I could to try to have this decision reversed by a higher court. If I were an epileptic, looking for work, I would gladly sign a paper to the effect that if I fell and hurt myself I would never ask for any compensation, and I would never sue. But now, if the courts are going to rule that an epileptic must be paid for his own accident, the outlook for epileptics is very bad.

6 Marines Die In U.S.-Canada War Exercises

OCEANSIDE, Calif. (AP)—Six United States Marines were lost in battering surf Tuesday, bringing the toll of death in current U.S.-Canadian naval maneuvers to 11.

The Marines, including the commanding officer of the 3rd amphibious tractor battalion, were hurled into the surf when their landing craft capsized.

Two bodies, including that of the battalion commander, were recovered.

Search for the other four was continuing while the rest of the 13,000 Marines swarmed ashore from transports of the amphibious force onto a Camp Pendleton beach.

Five men were killed Friday when a U.S. navy Skyraider bomber crashed onto the U.S. destroyer Hopewell. The victims were three fliers and two Hopewell crew members. Five others aboard the Hopewell were burned.

The rugged sea, lashed by a 25-mile an hour wind, capsized the amphibious craft and a rubber boat only a short distance from the beach. Other Marines in them were able to swim ashore.

MARRIAGE EVE

Deaths Traced To Gas Poison

CRANBROOK (CP)—Cranbrook's jury ruled Tuesday carbon monoxide poisoning was cause of the death last Oct. 21 of Leo Nordstrom and his fiancée, Amelia Fraser.

Carbon monoxide was coming from a natural gas heater in which liquid gas was being used.

Jury recommended amending the provincial Fire Act to provide that liquid gas distributors service only installations checked by a fire marshal.

The two were to be married Oct. 22, and were preparing their house when they were overcome by the fumes.

GUARANTEED WAGE GAINS 95% APPROVAL

WOODSTOCK, Ont. (CP)—The first guaranteed wage plan to be negotiated by a Canadian labor union has been accepted by a vote of 95 per cent of some 3,000 employees of Massey-Harris Ferguson Ltd. plants in Toronto, Bradford, Ont., and here.

Under the agreement the workers, members of the United Automobile Workers Union CIO-CLC, will be eligible for company-paid unemployment insurance. It will be in addition to benefits received under the federal unemployment insurance plan.

The company agreed to start payment into an unemployment fund next September. When the fund has reached an agreed limit, employees who are laid off can draw from it in proportion to their length of service.

The agreement guarantees workers a minimum of 65 per cent of his wages for four weeks and 60 per cent for a further 22 weeks.

EVEN EDITORS . . . CAN'T READ

Right-Eyed Johnny?

Editor's note: The writer, consulting the Institute of Reading for the Blind, stated Press, got into the swing of things himself and continued a column about.

Following is the account of what he learned about his own reading ability.

BY HERMAN R. ALLEN

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—It turns out I'm not a good reader.

For one kind of reading, that is—probably the most useful kind.

From years of editing press copy I'm pretty fair at detailed reading, hunting for misplaced words and misplaced commas.

And, from years of glancing at publicity handouts to "see if this is anything we want," I'm pretty good at quickly grasping general content.

It's the in-between kind of reading that throws me—rapid reading for detailed content, like studying or reading a serious magazine article, the kind most people do the most.

To get a better idea of what the Institute on Reading being held here this week is about, I asked Dr. Emmett A. Betts if he'd test my reading ability.

Dr. Betts is director of the Betts Reading Clinic at nearby Haverford, Pa., which is sponsoring the Institute.

CHECK VISION
"First," he said, "we'll check your vision."

He whipped out a gadget something like a flashlight, held it about 18 inches from my face and stared at toward my nose.

"Tell me when you see two lights," he said.

"Now," he said, covering my right eye. "Follow the light with your left eye."

He moved the light in a circle about a foot in diameter and I tracked it diligently.

We repeated the performance with the right eye.

VISUAL HANDICAP
"I hate to have to tell you this," Dr. Betts said, "but you have a visual handicap. No defect in your eyes, you understand, but you just don't use them properly."

I am "right-eyed." That is, my right eye controls the motion of both eyes. Unable to control itself properly, it doesn't control the left eye properly either.

The result of this is that my eyes don't take in whole phrases and lines of print at a time. Sometimes I miss part of a line and have to go back. All this slows me down.

Dr. Betts said recent findings indicate a majority of school children may suffer from this handicap.

Eggs in Technicolor

By PETER MATHIAS
TORONTO (CP)—The non-sensational purple color of modern verse is not on display at the Royal Winter Fair this year.

But there is a chicken here that lays technicolor eggs.

The versatile chickens represent 16 years of breeding and experimentation by O. P. Johnston, an 80-year-old Toronto furniture dealer.

Starting in 1939, Mr. Johnston last year finally produced a chicken that would consistently lay blue eggs.

In the breeding process over a six-year period, however, some of his chickens laid eggs that would put an Easter bunny to shame.

Mr. Johnston said he got red eggs, khaki, olive green, grey, chocolate and light green. But in 1954, he got the color he wanted—blue.

His 300 "Onto-Canas" chickens, named after Ontario, Canada, now produce about 200 blue eggs each year. Mr. Johnston said. He sells the eggs all over the world for $2 each or $20 a dozen.

According to Mr. Johnston, the blue eggs taste just like an ordinary white or brown hen's egg.

He has sent several samples to Cornell University and the Toronto General Hospital. Mr. Johnston said scientists think the color of the shell may have some influence on the contents of the egg. Experiments are being conducted, he said, to discover whether the eggs contain brain food.

But two board representatives and chairman Arthur Ash have recommended a joint committee on appointments be considered in the next agreement. It would consider applications for promotion of seniority and advancement.

Nelson Banished From Dublin

DUBLIN (AP)—Dubliners are busiest intersection for 147 years—determined to have the statue of and for 146 of those years—Admiral Lord Nelson removed from the middle of O'Connell st. street, the city's main street, named. City council Tuesday passed a resolution requesting permission to remove the statue. Councilors suggested the statue be put in the national museum, "or any other place" named by the trustees.

Estimated cost of the removal is £15,000 but Dubliners say it's worth it. Removal of the column can be achieved only by agreement of the monument's trustees or a special act of the Irish parliament. The trustees now are all Irish.

NINE YEARS MAYOR, J. C. Wragg of Duncan has announced he will not be a candidate for reelection next month. He was first elected in 1946 and was returned four times by acclamation.

Nanaimo Water Cut Threatened

NANAIMO—Restrictions on water service were threatened here Tuesday night to meet the water shortage caused here by freezing weather and reduced flow into the South Forks reservoir.

The shortage, considered serious Monday, had become acute by Tuesday night.

"In spite of our request that water be conserved, a 20 per cent increase in water consumption was noted overnight," said C. F. Newcombe, Greater Nanaimo Water District commissioner.

Consumption soared even beyond summer heights as householders left taps running to prevent pipes from freezing. Mr. Newcombe warned that unless the public co-operates by curtailing normal water consumption voluntarily, "the commission will have to take steps to remedy the situation by applying restricted service."

In addition to the sharply reduced flow of water into the reservoir, the situation has been further aggravated by an underwater slide or excessive silting at the main intake at the dam. Flow into the main has been cut and efforts of a diver to locate the blockage have been unsuccessful.

"While it is appreciated that a change in the weather may be coming, only rain will help the situation," said Mr. Newcombe.

Fund to Help 200 Needy At Christmas

NANAIMO—About 200 needy persons in the Nanaimo area will have meat and groceries delivered to them before Christmas Day, president of the Christmas cheer fund committee, Matt Armstrong, announced Tuesday.

Last year 170 persons were given script which they exchanged for groceries.

Mr. Armstrong was elected president of the aid organization for the 15th consecutive term this year. His assistant in the voluntary work is T. A. R. Anderson, who is in his 10th year as secretary-treasurer. Junior Chamber of Commerce has pledged its support to the cause.

Gen. Saanich Zoning By-Law Wins Support

By DICK FREEMAN
Times Brentwood Correspondent

KEATING—New Central Saanich zoning by-law was approved in principal Tuesday night at a sparsely attended public meeting in Keating WI Hall.

The by-law is due for passage at the next meeting of Central Saanich council.

It was learned that commercial areas will not be affected by the by-law. These include West Saanich road, from Wallace drive to Verdier avenue; districts of Saanichton and Keating; Springwood Products Ltd., Mount Newton; and Keating crossroad.

No building restriction will be placed on farms or residential areas.

A municipal official has said, though, that it is a "simple act that can be amended at any time."

Ross Leighton was chairman, and principal speaker was Brahm Weisman, of the Capital Region Planning Board. Reeve H. Rupert Brown also was present.

There was some discussion relative to interpretation of the by-law, particularly in regard to whether its provisions would interfere with subdivision of land.

ECONOMIC INQUIRY FAR-REACHING

Probers Seek Cures For Nation's Ailments

WINNIPEG (CP)—Walter L. Gordon disclosed today his royal commission will make definite proposals for solving some of Canada's major economic headaches that may develop in the next quarter-century.

The commission chairman said in an interview he interprets his terms of reference as not only embracing the job of forecasting the shape of the economy during the next 25 years but also the power to reach broad conclusions or recommendations of how old and new problems are to be overcome.

"We definitely will have a recommendation dealing with the problems of western agricultural economy," he said. "We also will have one on tariff policy as well as the role of secondary manufacturing in Canada."

"Our objective will be to find long-term solutions not only for such things as the development of roads, schools and hospitals."

MUST FIND PLAN

"We've got to find a conception of how major problems are to be handled. The continuous flow of persons from farms to cities will create problems that have not existed before. The population will grow and incomes will rise and the people will want more."

"We've got to take a hard look at the principles behind the tariff. We've got to take a look at Canada's winning side; to back our hunches with policy recommendations."

"New machines will be brought in and more workers will be displaced. We've got to decide which body of government will have the responsibility of giving the displaced workers a hand in finding new jobs."

The 49-year-old Toronto accountant said the commission's investigation, the biggest of its kind in history, is actually double-pronged.

Two inquiries are going on at the same time. While the five commissioners are moving across the country, to feel the country's economic pulse, to listen to what the provinces, municipalities and other organizations have to say about their problems and future, some 60 highly-skilled economists and business executives are making a survey of their own.

SOME WORK FREE

About 25 of these are economists on the commission staff located in Ottawa, each charged with a specific forecasting job such as foreign trade, the makeup of Canadian company ownership, population, labor, and tariffs.

Another 35 persons outside the commission, such as business executives, management consultants, labor experts and others, also are busy on specific jobs such as surveying transportation, the future of the auto industry and other tasks farmed out to them by the commission. Some of this latter work is being done without charge.

"The whole thing will be pulled together next spring," Mr. Gordon said. "We hope to have the report in the government's hands next fall."

"The hearings are part of the commissioners' education. We're finding out how the people feel about the economy, their fears and hopes for the future and what they think ought to be done to overcome problems. The hearings are of great help, but then we planned them for a long time."

The commission spent two weeks last month in the Maritimes and also is started on a three-week tour of the west.

"The time spent is paying off," Mr. Gordon said. "The briefs we have received so far show the provinces and other bodies have done a fine job of forecasting and bringing their problems before us."

Vancouver Subway Still 25 Years Off

VANCOUVER (BUP)—City engineer John Oliver says Vancouver won't likely have a subway before 1980.

Oliver said Monday the population of Greater Vancouver should reach more than 1,250,000 in the next 25 years and be spread out enough to support a subway.

At a special session city council unanimously adopted a draft report by the technical planning board to be presented to the royal commission studying Canada's economic prospects.

In a discussion of traffic problems, Ald. George Cunningham said: "In the next 25 years we have got to find a better way to get in and out of the heart of Vancouver."

Coty, his two daughters and his 10 grandchildren, and top members of the French government and diplomatic corps attended. Thousands of private citizens stood outside in the cold autumn winds.

UNDER PROTEST B.C. Accepts Highway Plan

OTTAWA (CP)—The provinces would have to accept the new agreement because it did offer some measure of relief. But B.C. accepts "under protest."

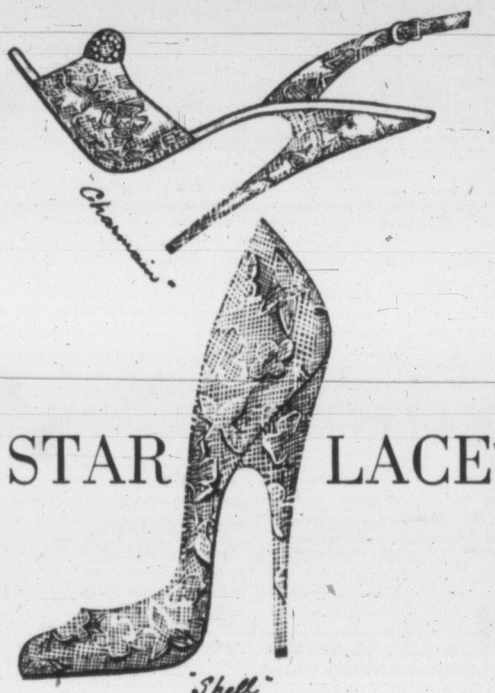

Their reluctant acceptance wound up a two-day federal-provincial meeting attended by all provinces except Quebec, which has taken no part in the 4,580-mile Trans-Canada highway project begun in 1950 and now about one-third complete to set standards. It paves the way for a new agreement with the nine participating provinces, continuing the existing 50-50 split cost formula but injecting a new federal proposal. This will provide 90 per cent federal payment for the building of federally-approved links of up to 10 per cent of the total Trans-Canada mileage in any one province. British Columbia Highway Minister Galardi said his province

Children's Taste in Reading Catholic, Specialists Say

What type of books do children like to read?

This question was posed to several teachers, librarians and visitors who attended a reception at the Victoria Public Library to mark the opening of Young Canada's Book Week.

The event, designed to arouse interest in good children's books, features a large display of books for boys and girls. The display is open to the public every day this week through to next Monday.

Most of the visitors questioned replied that cowboy, animal and nature books are the most popular with children.

But they added there was evidence of several new trends. For instance, more and more girls are asking for books on "ballet," which was due to the increasing interest in dancing.

Religious stories are still holding their own, they added, but sea stories are not much in demand.

Here are some of the comments made:

Connie Dougan, librarian at Esquimalt High School—I find many girls around 15 years of age interested in animal stories. Such books as "Lassie Come Home" are still popular.

Miss Gwen Scott, proprietor of a book store—Parents should choose books to suit the child's age. Children at certain ages like "fantasy stories" and they should read them. The books of Beatrix Potter are still among the most popular children's books.

Prof. Robert Wallace, Victoria College—I think children should read books dealing more with local themes, such as stories about British Columbia.

Miss Dorothy Thompson, teacher—Children like well-illustrated books.

Miss M. Conibear, teacher—Books today have to be written simply and well illustrated to be popular with children.

Several visitors expressed the view that parents should consult teachers before selecting books for their children because many adults chose books "they liked." These were sometimes considered dull by the young ones.

Norway Signs New Pacts With Russia

MOSCOW (CP)—Norwegian Premier Einar Gerhardsen Tuesday signed an agreement with Russia, renewing Norway's standing pledge not to grant foreign armed forces bases on her territory "as long as Norway is not attacked."

Norwegian Commerce Minister Arne Skaug and his Soviet counterpart, Ivan Kabanov, also signed a three-year $16,860,000 trade pact at the Kremlin "widening the scope" of the present trade agreement.

Though Norway is a member of NATO—the only NATO member bordering Russia—Norway does not permit NATO bases as do various other European members.

UN Committee Bugged Down

By JACK BEST

Canadian Press Staff Writer
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—A disagreement over the applicability of one simple word has caused the most prolonged deadlock of the 1953 UN Assembly.

The word is "right." For nearly six weeks the assembly's social and humanitarian committee debated whether it belonged in an article on self-determination forming part of the proposed human rights covenants.

Then it gave up and decided to pass on to another agenda item while a sub-committee wrestles with the problem. The sub-committee is scheduled to report back Nov. 19.

There are 83 articles in the two draft covenants framed by the UN Human Rights Commission, 54 of which deal with political rights and 29 with economic and social rights. Self-determination, namely the right fully to determine their political, economic, social and cultural status.

COUNTRIES DIVIDED
There is an almost even distribution of strength between the countries who support inscription of this "right" and those who oppose it.

On the one hand are the five Soviet-bloc countries—Russia, Ukraine, Byelorussia, Czechoslovakia, Poland—plus the extreme "anti-colonial" powers—Syria, Saudi Arabia, Afghanistan, Greece and Indonesia.

These nations appear determined to use Article 1 as a vehicle for winning the independence of non-self governing territories.

On the other side are the "administering powers"—Britain, Belgium, The Netherlands, France, when it is in the assembly—plus Canada, Australia, New Zealand, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Brazil and Turkey.

OTHERS NEUTRAL

The other 38 UN members are more or less neutral—with the exception of South Africa, while before its walkout last week over the decision to continue probing race conflicts within its borders was even more extreme than Britain in its opposition to the article.

Opponents of the clause argue that the concept of self-determination is as yet too vague for inclusion in the covenants and requires further study. They are inclined to regard self-determination as a goal or principle rather than a right.

Canada put forth the view that self-determination is a collective thing having no place in documents dealing with individual rights. The Canadian Government is understood to be favorably disposed toward a separate covenant on self-determination.

BERT THOMAS

Strait Victor Planning New Swim Attempt

Strait of Juan de Fuca conqueror Bert Thomas plans a swim January 14 from Seattle to his home town of Tacoma, the husky ex-marine told the Times from there today.

It will be the first time the swim has ever been attempted. Distance will be approximately 22 miles, in much the same water temperature, 46 degrees, as in the Strait, which was beaten for the first time in history by Mr. Thomas last July 8.

"I don't know how tough the new swim will be," said he today, "but it's unlikely it will be as difficult as the Strait."

Details of the swim have yet to be worked out, but it was considered likely the landing, if the swim is successful, will be at Tacoma's Commencement Bay.

"I've just started training," said the burly swimmer. He weighs 260 pounds now, and intends to trim off 25 pounds before attempting the coastwise waters.

Advertising Man Says City Tops

Enjoying Victoria's "warmer than Montreal" weather today is F. P. Gill, vice-president of the McLaren Advertising Agency.

"This is still the best place to come for a winter vacation," said Mr. Gill, who is staying with his wife at the Empress Hotel.

"You may think it's cold right now, but this is nothing to what we can get in Montreal."

After their vacation here Mr. and Mrs. Gill will move on to Vancouver with the Grey Cup football final in mind.

"Trade in advertising is brisk," Mr. Gill added, "and the prospects for 1954 look pretty good. Having said that much, I think I'll get on with my vacation."

YOUNG DANCERS WILL PRESENT ANNUAL FANTASY

Annual children's fantasy production by young dancers of the Florence Clough Dance Academy will be presented on three consecutive Saturday mornings in December at the Royal Theatre.

Each Saturday, Dec. 3, 19 and 17, there will be two hour-long performances, starting at 9.30 and 11 a.m.

Tickets will be sold in advance from a special booth on the third floor of the Hudson's Bay Company.

The show will be billed this year as "Santa Claus Show" and will highlight a production based on the tale of Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs. All of the intricate costuming has been done by parents of the youngsters.

Funds from ticket sales go to Salarium Junior League activities.

ISTANBUL (Reuters)—Turkey's ruling Democratic party has won 2,866 of the 3,713 results so far announced in municipal elections held throughout the country Sunday.

Main opposition parties boycotted the elections because they alleged the Democratic party, which swept to power in 1950, was undemocratic.

Anything Can Happen Tonight's Grid Theme

IT'S MY VIEW

By BILL WALKER, Sports Editor

Suddenly the Canucks are heading the pack. . . . It came as a bit of a shock, the above realization, as the Cougars took three cuts over the weekend and got nothing. But if you ask a member of the Canucks it was due them. Not so much the Cougar defeat Monday, that was written off by Carl Kaiser as "one of those games which somebody had to win. . . and we did."

But rather it is the Canucks ascendancy to the top rung of the western division that was the topic. Carl is an honest type of player, both on the ice and in the dressing room. He has always been our idea of a good workman and when he stated that such honor was due the Canucks, we listened.

For as Carl explained, "we won only one game on our prairie trip, but by our play we deserved better. We were leading in the third period of two other games and with any luck could have had six points instead of two."

And the Canucks have become that way because they stick closely to the fundamentals of positional hockey. The wings play the wings, the centre plays the centre and the defence covers up, one for the other.

It's sound, basic hockey, and it's paying off. And as Carl went further: "Our spirit is high, the players are hustling, what more can a guy ask?"

Olson's Whip Cracking Now

Meanwhile, coach Eddie Olson of the Cougars has turned irrevocable in his efforts to snap the Cougars out of a lethargy that is extremely puzzling.

There was no respite from practice drills following Monday's defeat. It was a gruelling grind Tuesday for the Cats who visibly showed the strain.

Tongue lashings were the order and healthy body-checks were not uncommon.

The most serious disturbance facing the Cougars at the moment is the fact that they have yet to make a prairie trip. The Canucks have completed their first, and so have the Royals. It is a suicidal outing at best, the jaunt to the hinterlands. Five games in six days is the order of business with the devil take the hindmost. That's why success on the coast is such a necessity to a club.

Games Aren't Won on Paper

For a time the Cougars were enjoying that reputation, but overnight the situation has altered.

The Canucks have assumed control and they seem prepared to keep it.

Or as Carl said: "The spark has gone from your club."

Certainly, on paper, the Canucks don't rank any higher than the Cougars in our book.

But lately they've been playing all games on ice. There's the difference.

Kramer Retires (Again), Gonzales Joins Troupe

LOS ANGELES (UP)—Big Jack Kramer, 34, today had retired from the courts again after signing Pancho Gonzales to replace him as the fourth member of Kramer's world professional tennis tour.

Kramer, who has called it quits as a competitor before, said he was busy enough managing his tour which starts Dec. 9 in New York's Madison Square Garden.

He said Gonzales will receive a guaranteed $15,000 against a percentage of the gate and added Pancho would earn "at least $45,000."

Gonzales joins Tony Trabert, Rex Hartwig and Francisco (Pancho) Segura.

Navy Gridders Blank Kamloops

Navy football team invaded the Interior over the holiday weekend, and in below-zero temperatures at Kamloops, downed the Kamloops Elks, 13-0.

The two teams played a short-lived game because of the frozen ground and 40-mph wind that swept across the field.

Star of the Navy team was Jerry Porter, who, in his first time at fullback, played a driving game and scored a driving touchdown on a plunge over left tackle. Other Navy major was scored on a pass from quarterback Archie Langston to Ron Young in the end zone.

SYDNEY, Australia (UP)—Lew Hoad and Ken Rosewall gained the doubles final today at the New South Wales tennis championships by defeating John Bromwich and Adrian Quist, 8-6, 6-3, 7-9, 6-3. Mervyn Rose and Don Candy defeated Neale Fraser and Ashley Cooper, 6-3, 6-4, 6-3.

Weather Held As Key To Playoff

By JIM PEACOCK

Canadian Press Staff Writer EDMONTON (CP)—The immediate football future of Edmonton Eskimos and Winnipeg Blue Bombers now is in the fickle hand of fate. So say the coaches.

"I sure hope we can do it," says coach Frank (Pop) Ivy of the Eskimos. "But anything can happen in weather like this. You just can't predict anything."

"Sorry," says coach Al Sherman of Blue Bombers. "But I've got no predictions. It should be a good ball game. Otherwise you can't tell what will happen."

Ivy and Sherman sized up the situation in separate interviews here on the eve of the second game of the best-of-three Western Interprovincial Football Union final.

Eskimos won the first game 26-6 on a frozen, snow swept field at Winnipeg Friday. Tonight Esk seek the victory that would send them into the Grey Cup final at Vancouver Nov. 26. The two clubs are meeting in the WIFU final for the third consecutive year.

Should Bombers win, the third game will be played here Saturday night.

As for the weather, the forecaster sizes it up like this: temperature just above zero, wind light to negligible, little if any snow.

Clarke Stadium's grassy turf is hard as cement. There is no ice or snow on it, but cleated boots have little traction on the solid surface, frozen by a week of below-zero weather.

TEAMS IN GOOD SHAPE

Ivy sent his Eskimos through a 1½-hour drill Tuesday night, polishing offensive and defensive plays. The players turned out in running shoes and sweat suits, reinforced with several sweaters, parka hoods and gloves. Many wore woolen face masks to keep out the biting cold.

Bombers flew into frigid Edmonton Tuesday night and most of the players went to a movie. No work-out was scheduled.

After Eskimos' workout, Ivy sat in the dressing room shaking his head.

"This weather is rough, awfully rough to play in," he said. "There might be a lot of fumbles and a lot of passes dropped. It's so cold out there anything can happen."

Vernon Takes 10th Straight OSHL Victory

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Vernon Canadians swept to their 10th consecutive win Tuesday night to create an Okanagan Senior Hockey League record.

Falling 7-9 before the aggressive Canadians in overtime were Kelowna Packers, taking their sixth straight defeat—including two exhibition games—from the Canadians this season.

Vernon now leads the league with a six-point margin over Kamloops Elks.

Starry coach George Agar put the home game on ice for his Canadians by scoring both overtime goals.

In the Western International Hockey League, the Kimberley Dynamiters came out a losing slump by slaughtering Nelson Maple Leafs 7-1.

Before a home crowd, it was their first win in nine attempts. Claude Bell and Cal Hockey led the crushing assault with a pair of goals each.

Tonight, Spokane goes to Nelson in the WIHL, while in the Okanagan, Penticton goes to Kamloops.

'Strength Through Youth' England's Soccer Format

By ARCH MACKENZIE

LONDON (CP)—England's strength-through-youth soccer movement will be tested Nov. 30 at cavernous Wembley stadium against Spain in the last International of 1955.

The axe fell on some old timers, including right-winger Stanley Matthews, after Wales took its first decision over England in years, and made the 40-year-old maestro and some of his colleagues look pretty slow.

A rescrumbed outfit defeated the Republic of Ireland 3-0, well enough to gain the players a chance for selection against Spain. A 17-man squad has been short-listed. Intensive training, including six practice games, is under way to breed familiarity and confidence.

It may be that Matthews, named 77 times for England, finished internationally, but a 22-year-old forward named Johnny Haynes and a few other downy-cheeked stars offer some consolation for the loss of one of the world's greatest football artists. Haynes, of Fulham, so impressed against Ireland with his pin-point passing and seemingly-mature soccer brain that even The Times was impressed.

"There is a genius in him which does what it must and it demands to be given free reign. Haynes . . . if he is wisely guided, can and should be the figure around whom the English attack ought to be built."

Training with Haynes for the year's international finale—there are at least two big events at the end of the season—will be husky Duncan Edwards, Manchester United back, forward John Atkey of Bristol City and halfback Ron Clayton of Blackburn, all 23 or under.

Either Ron Baynham of Luton Town or Reg Matthews of Coventry will be in goal, fullback will be chosen from Jeff Hall of Birmingham and Jim Langley

SEATTLE (AP)—Eddy Dorohoy said Tuesday "I've been robbed" and added he would protest the $100 fine levied against him by Al Leader, president of the Western Hockey League.

"I'm not paying out 100 bucks until I know what it's all about."

Dorohoy and Vic Lynn of Saskatoon Quakers were fined $100 each for using profanity in games at Victoria.

"If there was any cussing," it came from the group of fans which "always sits around the penalty box at Victoria," Dorohoy asserted.

Said Leader: "The fine sticks."

NOMADS STILL WINLESS

Farmers Share City Hoop Lead

Farmer Construction used the hapless Nomads as stepping stones at S. J. Willis Junior High School Tuesday night to climb into a first-place tie in the Victoria senior "B" men's basketball league standings.

Farmers tripped Nomads, 47-30, to move alongside undefeated Dickinson & Dunn with four points. Nomads now have lost three straight games.

Bill Garner led the winners with 16 points, while Gordy Jones and Leroy Bond picked up nine points apiece. Ron Martin's eight-point effort was the best for Nomads.

Nomads, who collected 15 of the 27 fouls called in the rough game, were only behind by 23-20 at half time in a dogged effort to post their first win. They faded badly in the final two quarters, however, to pick up only two field goals and six free throws.

In preliminary action, Cordova Bay, led by G. Bishop with 14 points, defeated Chinese Students, 38-19, in a juvenile boys game, while Brentwood juvenile girls downed Eagles, 14-10.

Bentley Calls It Quits; Stamps Win Eighth in Row

Calgary 2, Vancouver 0; Saskatoon 8, Winnipeg 3; Edmonton 6, Regina 4

By The Canadian Press

Max Bentley, who chalked up 14 consecutive seasons of professional hockey interrupted only by his service in the armed forces, scored his last goal Tuesday night.

The 39-year-old native of Delisle, Sask., who saw 12 seasons of action with Chicago Black Hawks, Toronto Maple Leafs and New York Rangers in the NHL before he was forced from the big-time by a recurring back injury, announced his retirement after Saskatoon Quakers had defeated Winnipeg Warriors 8-3 in one of the three Western Hockey League games.

And Max, who had marked up 263 NHL goals, including 18 playoff tallies, scored the winner for the Quakers.

In the other action Tuesday, Calgary Stampede won their eighth consecutive game, whitewashing the Canucks 2-0 in Vancouver, and Edmonton Flyers handed Regina Regals their seventh straight defeat, 6-4, in Regina.

MAX BENTLEY
... 14 years of service

TIME TO QUIT

Bentley said he felt it was time to retire from the game which was so good to him. Dave Gordichuk, a New York Ranger-owned player with Spokane Flyers of the Western International Hockey League, will take his place.

Jackie McLeod paced the rapid Saskatoon assault with four goals while Les Colwill scored twice. Earl Ingard and Bentley scored the others.

Quakers went ahead 5-1 in the opening period and slammed home two more unanswered markers in the second session.

Calgary's win, on one earned goal, was Canucks' second defeat at home this year.

Jim McFadden and Gerry Couture scored for Stampede.

More than 3,800 fans, shivering in the current cold spell in Vancouver, watched McFadden score the winner on a picture goal midway through the first period. He swooped in from the left side and deflected Sandy Hucul's pass into the net.

Couture's tally was scored into an empty net with five seconds left in the game.

In Regina, Don Poile paced the winners with three goals. Eddie Stankiewicz netted two and Jerry Melnyk the other. Elliott Chorley, Pat Lundy, Bill Kyle and Jim Hay scored for Regals.

Regina held a 2-1 lead at the end of the first but Flyers tied the count 2-2 going into the third period.

Stankiewicz scored twice in 32 seconds early in the final period and Poile scored his second to give Flyers a 5-2 margin. Regals came right back with two goals in 24 seconds to chop the edge to one. Another goal, by Norm Johnson of Regina, was disallowed because he was standing in the crease.

Calgary plays the Royals at New Westminster tonight, while Winnipeg is host to Edmonton.

If you want to win, you need a smooth skin!

O'Connor Sought To Succeed Goodwin

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—At least four directors of the Pacific Coast League were hopeful today they could persuade Chicago attorney Leslie O'Connor to take over as president of the Pacific Coast League.

O'Connor, if he could be persuaded, would succeed Claire V. Goodwin, who has submitted an "open end" resignation as president of the eight-team loop.

Goodwin submitted his resignation which he said is "good today, tomorrow or anytime," to Fred David, president of the Sacramento Solons and a PCL director. David said the resignation was the result of a talk to Goodwin.

"I was appointed a committee of one to talk to Goodwin to see how he felt about our failure to re-elect him at our annual meeting in Vancouver, B.C., David said. "This is the upshot of it."

David said the directors generally provide for the president at the annual meeting. Goodwin's term was due to expire Dec. 31. He had no contract.

"There is no action taken," David said. "He read between the lines and decided he would not like to stay in there unless he had the unanimous approval of all the directors."

INDECISION

What apparently provoked the wrath of the PCL directors was Goodwin's failure to come up with the right answer on the disposal of the San Francisco Seals franchise. This was once the most valuable piece of property in minor league baseball.

The franchise is now in the hands of the PCL directors; with a debt of about $200,000 on it. Hank Greenberg of the Cleveland Indians and Joseph Cairnes of the Milwaukee Braves decided against buying it.

The pro-O'Connor directors said he "has the proper major league connections and knows baseball from the bottom up." O'Connor was formerly secretary to the late Kenesaw Mountain Landis, high commissioner of baseball.

Turpin Faces $100,000 Suit

NEW YORK (AP)—Randy Turpin, Britain's former world middleweight champion, arrived on the liner Queen Mary Tuesday to contest a $100,000 damage suit.

Attorneys for Adele Daniels, a New York negress, said a $100,000 damage suit alleging assault and battery had been filed against Turpin in Supreme Court and that it was on the court calendar for next Monday.

Two years ago Miss Daniels brought assault charges against Turpin, alleging that the British negro fighter beat her before and after he fought Carl "Bobo" Olson for the world middleweight title. She withdrew her charges, however, when Turpin sailed for home, Nov. 4, 1953.

Olsen defeated Turpin in Madison Square Garden, Oct. 21, 1953.

What Price Scribes? Grid Writers That Is

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Province sport page Tuesday carried a two-column, 10-inch deep football prediction written by Normie Kwong, star full-back with Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Interprovincial Football Union.

Few of the Province's readers could understand it, however—it was written in Chinese. The column, on today's Edmonton-Winnipeg WIFU final, was presumably published in satire aimed at the dozens of football players who have been appearing in print on sport pages across Canada.

Underneath the Chinese characters The Province carried this translation of Kwong's writings: "The man who can keep his hands the warmest and still handle the ball on the frozen

College Girls Unbeaten

Winning three games in as many days, Victoria College girls' grass hockey team returned from Vancouver undefeated over the weekend with the Pacific Northwest grass hockey conference title.

It was the first time the school had entered the annual event.

Shaking off the freezing temperatures, Victoria College blanked University of Idaho, 3-0, Friday, and Oregon State University, 4-0, Saturday.

Sunday, led by Donna Burridge with five straight goals, Victoria College won the final game of the meet, defeating Centralia Junior College, 7-1.

Cracks Own Record

LONDON (AP)—Gallina Zybina, the Soviet Union's Olympic champion, Tuesday broke her own world shotput record for the fourth time this year.

The powerful blonde athlete reached 16.67 metres (54 feet 8 1/2 inches) at the Soviet all-union track and field championships at Tiflis, Moscow radio reported. Her listed world mark set in 1954 is 16.28 metres (53 feet 5 inches).

PLANTE QUILTS WANDERING

Moral: If You Play Goal, Stay in Goal

By THE CANADIAN PRESS—Unlike many coaches, Toe Blake doesn't tell his goaltender how to do his job. His reason is simple: "I never played goal myself."

About the only time Blake came close to giving an order to Jacques Plante of Montreal Canadiens was when he asked Jacques to stop wandering about the rink. Plante did. Now he's the top netminder in the National Hockey League this season.

Since Plante checked his habit of skating far out of his cage while attempting to stop crashing forwards he has maintained a sizzling pace in the goaltenders' race. He has a goals-against average of 1.53 in 17 games and leads such hotshots as Terry Sawchuk of Boston Bruins and Harry Lumley of Toronto Maple Leafs.

Plante figures he has improved greatly because he sticks close to his net.

"Another reason is that I'm not falling so much in blocking shots," he added Tuesday night in an interview. "I used to fall a lot. I would stop the first shot all right but I had no chance of getting the rebound because I would be down on the ice."

AIMS FOR SIXTH SHUTOUT

Plante has registered five shutouts with the league-leading Canadiens so far this season. He'll be trying for No. 6 tonight when the Montrealers clash with the last-place Leafs at Toronto.

In the only other engagement, Detroit Red Wings, in fifth spot, meet the second-place Rangers in New York.

Plante has scored shutouts against every team in the league except the Rangers. Blake, who put Canadiens through a light workout shortly after they arrived at Toronto Tuesday, is happy with Canadiens' performance. The Habs have lost only three games. However, Toe, former great Montreal centre, won't make any predictions on the league race. "I'm through predicting. It seems to me that every time I open my mouth about five guys are ready to put their feet in it."

POTGIETER DRAWS WITH PARKER?

Rocky Should Be Laughing

By ROBERT C. DOWSON
United Press Sports Writer

LONDON (UP)—Handlers of Ewart Potgieter, the sky-scraping South African who would like to be a bigger and better Primo Carnera, talked again today of a possible trip to the United States, despite his poor showing in a draw with James J. Parker of Paterson, N.J., and Toronto.

Announcement of the draw decision was greeted with an outburst of booing by the crowd of about 10,000 at Harringway Arena Tuesday night, many of whom thought Parker had won. The seven-foot two-inch Potgieter, who weighed 325 pounds for exactly a 100-pound advantage over his rival, thus kept his unbeaten record clean but seemed confused and extremely awkward as he stumbled about the ring and tried to pole-axe Parker with long swinging blows.

Potgieter's handlers pointed to his inexperience—this was the first time he had been forced to go the full distance in his short career—and continued to speak optimistically of a career that might lead to the world heavyweight championship. That would be following in the footsteps of Carnera, the six-foot six-inch Italian who ruled the boxing world from June, 1933, to June, 1934.

Potgieter showed little that would establish him as a challenger to champion Rocky Marciano in the near future as he tried in vain to tag Parker. On the other hand, the six-foot five-inch Parker found it mighty hard to reach the South African's chin and was unable to bring him down with body blows.

Potgieter was most impressive at the start as he pummeled Parker in the first round and then knocked the Canadian-born ex-cowboy rubber-legged in the second with a right to the head.

TENNIS STAR ARRESTED

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (AP)—Frank Kovacs, 35, internationally known tennis star, was freed from county jail Tuesday night on $2,000 bail. Detectives Sgt. Ernest Marengi said Kovacs had been picked up on a charge of molesting an eight-year-old school girl.

FORT WAYNE, Ind.—Bob Baker, 218, Pittsburgh, outpointed Sgt. J. P. Reed, 198, San Francisco, 10-0.

Maryland Accepts Orange Bowl Bid

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—Maryland Tuesday accepted an invitation to play in the Orange Bowl football game at Miami, Jan. 2, after being unanimously selected by the Atlantic Coast Conference to represent it against Oklahoma. Oklahoma holds the top spot in the weekly Associated Press poll to determine the nation's 10 top college football teams. Maryland ranks No. 2.

Oklahoma was selected by the Big Seven Conference, and accepted the assignment earlier.

New Compound Aids Peptic Ulcer Victim

TORONTO, Nov. 15 (BUP)—A new compound being introduced in North America in the next few weeks, the outgrowth of a Danish scientist's experiments with chickens, promised new hope today to millions of victims of peptic ulcers.

The new compound is the first to attack ulcers through the nutritional approach alone, without the use of drugs. It has been subjected to extensive clinical trials in Europe, Canada and the United States with what were described at a news conference here as excellent results.

Dr. Floyd W. Shafer, director of the gastroenterological clinic of the general hospital in Stroudsburg, Pa., was quoted here as saying the new product had opened up a new field in the treatment of the complicated ulcer problem.

EXUL, TRADE NAME

The new compound is called Exul, a trade name under which it will be marketed in Canada and the United States by the Yorktown Products (Canada) Ltd. and the Yorktown Products Corp. of New York.

Exul is a wafer-like food product made from extracts of animal tissue from brain, adrenal and liver. The primary source is beef cattle and it is now being manufactured only at Kalenborg, Denmark.

The wafer is about the size of a silver dollar and a half-inch thick. It tastes pleasantly of chocolate and malt, and is flaky in texture. It contains about 135 calories.

Dr. Shafer, who was ill and unable to attend the news conference, was reported to have conducted two series of tests of a total of 41 patients suffering from duodenal or gastric ulcer. He prescribed five Exul wafers per patient per day.

SUCCESS RECORDED

In the first series, a pilot test with 10 patients, Dr. Shafer said seven duodenal patients were free of symptoms at the end of a week. The ulcer crater disappeared in three to four weeks. Two gastric ulcer patients were symptom-free in 14 days. One required three courses of treatment consisting of 14 days each, but he, too, was relieved of all symptoms.

During the second series of 31 patients, Dr. Shafer said, 30 were without symptoms after two weeks and X-ray studies showed that the majority still showed scarring of the duodenal cap. One case of gastritis, for whom all other medication had failed, responded well and his ulcer eventually had disappeared.

Dr. Shafer concluded: "Since my pilot and second series showed meritorious results after a year of constant observation of all patients concerned, I feel that the medical profession should now be given this product worldwide for patients suffering with peptic ulcer."

OFFICIALS APPROVE

Other clinical tests have been made in Canada, Denmark and Italy, and the product has been approved by the food and drug authorities of the United States and Canada. Because of a difference in laws, Exul will be available without prescription in Canada, but for at least a year will be available only through doctors in the United States.

The wafers which makes up the dietary deficiency which is believed to contribute to the growth of ulcers was developed on the basis of experiments by Professor Henrik Dam of Denmark. He discovered that by using a synthetic diet he was able to produce ulcers in the mucosa of the chicken gizzard. By adding the extracts of animal tissue to this diet, he found that the ulcers disappeared within a short time.

DEEP IN AUSTRALIA'S HEART THEY DO THINGS TEXAS-STYLE

BRISBANE (CP)—Chartered aircraft, small private planes, cars and jeeps brought 250 guests to a party in the far north of Queensland in northeastern Australia.

It was the two-day 21st birthday party of Verna Lawrence, daughter of Walter Lawrence of Wrotham Park, a 3,500-square-mile cattle ranch.

Women guests slept in the eight-bedrooms on the top floor of the 80-year-old homestead. The men slept in tents, in the men's quarters and in the garage.

Wrotham Park has 70 employees. Planes pull up at the front door, and a flying doctor calls once a month on a routine medical flight.

Economic Probe Will Sit Here Nov. 28

The Royal Commission on Economic Development in Canada will sit in Victoria Nov. 28, it was learned today.

Saanich so far is the only municipality in this area which has proposed to present a brief to the commission on the need of municipalities for some form of financial relief. The brief is being prepared by John Tribe, municipal clerk.

Clr. S. W. Brock, who proposed to council the submission of a brief, said Saanich will ask the federal government to put into operation the Aid to Municipalities Act, which so far has been inactive.

The act enables the federal government to set up a fund to provide loans to municipalities at low interest rates.

"Such a fund would provide municipalities with a big advantage, especially when it came to borrowing money for the purpose of capital investment, such as sewers, roads and drains," said Clr. Brock. Mr. Brock added it would be safer borrowing money from the federal government than floating a loan on the bond market.

He pointed out that Saanich lost over $100,000 when it floated a loan on the open market for the $2,500,000 sewage project. This was due to the fluctuation of the bond market, he said.

This would not happen if the money was borrowed from the federal government, he added.

Life Exists on Mars Lord Nelson Claims

By ROBERT MUSEL
United Press Staff Correspondent

LONDON (UP)—The Earl Nelson dissected his duck in wine sauce with the efficiency of a true scientist and, stabbing a forkful at the gilded ceiling, said:

"There is life on Mars." "People like us?"

"Life," replied the great-grandnephew of the immortal Admiral Nelson, "can take many forms."

We were lunching with Lord and Lady Nelson to celebrate informally the publication of his new book, "There Is Life on Mars," a subject which has long intrigued him.

Ten months from now Mars will approach closest to earth. Scientists plan to examine the planet intently with newer and more powerful telescopes.

Lord Nelson is convinced any new discoveries astronomers may make about Mars next September will confirm his theories, based upon the research of numerous scientists and woven into a plausible conclusion of his own.

"It's true," he said, "that the Martian atmosphere would not be capable of supporting life as might be."

"There can now be no doubt that vegetable life of some sort exists on Mars, and if the presence of vegetable life is admitted it is difficult to deny the existence of animal life."

I pressed Lord Nelson about what kind of living thing.

"For reasons connected with temperature and other conditions existing there," he said, "it has been suggested that life on Mars may have developed along what we term insect lines. This is not entirely impossible. Here we are inclined to look upon insects as something small and insignificant. We cannot visualize a dominant form of life on such lines."

I remarked that some of the comic book writers in the United States were way ahead of him with weird stories of giant ants taking over cities.

"Very ingenious," he chuckled. "So you think there may be insects on Mars?" I said.

"Not necessarily," he said. "I've got an open mind at the moment on what form life there might be."

Householders Buy Sheep as 'Lawnmowers'

SYDNEY, Australia (CP)—A father and son have built up a thriving industry in the city of Sydney selling sheep and lambs as "lawnmowers."

Since they hit on the idea seven years ago the two men, James Dennis and his son, Tom, have sold about 14,000 sheep in the Sydney metropolitan area.

They say the sheep keep down people's lawns better than any lawnmower. They have also established a "secondary" and more valuable industry by shearing the sheep they sell and buying the clip.

James Dennis said they would probably shear 12,000 sheep in Sydney this year. They average about eight pounds of wool from each sheep at a shearing. At recent wool sales they sold more than 2,000 pounds of wool at prices ranging from 25 cents to 65 cents a pound.

"I reckon we have one of the biggest sheep-stations in Australia right here in Sydney," said Dennis jokingly.

The Dennises' business has now reached the point where they employ two permanent shearers who travel from suburb to suburb in trucks shearing sheep seven days a week.

"We circulate the sheep-owners on our books to arrange a shearing appointment," said Dennis. "Then a shearer goes to the house, takes the sheep to a truck and whisks off the fleece."

Provinces Tightening Up Traffic Regulations

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canada's provinces are tightening up on their traffic regulations, hoping to curtail death on the highways.

Each province is clamping down on existing legislation and some are revamping their highway codes in attempts to reduce highway fatalities and accidents, a Canadian Press survey shows.

Some report a drop already in their accident rate.

The British Columbia highways department reports driving records "greatly improved" during the last two years, coincidental with a stepped-up program of law enforcement and education.

Its program gives traffic controllers power to rule bad drivers off the highway. Repeaters are sent warning letters and licenses may be suspended for indefinite periods.

SPECIAL COMMITTEE

The B.C. legislature took two steps last summer to ensure better highway safety. It appointed a provincial traffic safety advisory committee to make continuing study of highway safety and instructed all RCMP sub-divisions to set up sections dealing exclusively with highway enforcement.

J. A. Christie, chairman of Saskatchewan's traffic board, says the "most important single factor in cutting highway accidents in Saskatchewan is our system of driver-licensing control... the only program of its kind in Canada."

The system works this way: A driver first is given a white licence. He loses it after his first serious offence and gets a red licence. One more "red" infraction and he loses the licence completely. On minor infractions he gets a blue licence—and three blues lose him the right to drive.

Mr. Christie says this legislation, basically in effect since 1938, makes no "sweeping changes," but the province keeps "tightening the regulations through annual revision" and thus keeps a close rein on drivers.

TRAINING IN MANITOBA

Traffic officials in Manitoba say their driver-training program is effective in cutting accidents down. Most training is done before the driver hits the highway.

Under Manitoba's Highway Traffic Act all prospective drivers undergo written and practical tests. The motor vehicles registrar may call before him for review any person showing a poor driving record.

The registrar also has power to suspend any driver who continues to show a bad record after he has gone through a driver-improvement clinic—where he takes tests involving color, depth perception and reaction. Last October 6,328 of 268,000 drivers in Manitoba were under suspension.

Ontario is in the midst of an all-out campaign against drivers who violate traffic laws.

Ontario Attorney-General Kelson Roberts, who has predicted a 50-per-cent reduction in traffic accidents in a 12-month period, has asked for co-operation of municipal police forces. His aim is uniform enforcement throughout the province.

Provincial police are carrying on a spot check of vehicles on provincial highways, and laying charges for all violations of the Highway Traffic Act.

The attorney-general's department is reported considering various methods of cracking down on violators—such as varicolored cruisers manned by constables in plain clothes, extension of the period driver's licenses may be suspended, and unmarked radar speed traps.

Quebec says its most effective legislation is cancellation of permits for excessive speeds as well as more serious offences. New regulations governing the load trucks may carry have helped cut accidents, since overloaded trucks cannot brake fast. Improvements planned include overhauling of road-sign systems, radar speed traps and cameras of police cars to photograph traffic violators.

Victoria Daily Times 13
WEDNESDAY, NOV. 16, 1955

Newfoundland relies mainly on strict speed limits. Deputy Attorney-General H. G. Puddesher says the impaired and drunken driving sections of the federal criminal code help most to curtail accidents. E. S. Campbell, registrar for Nova Scotia, says safety still depends on the three Es—engineering, enforcement and education.

B.C. Milk Industry Faces Major Overhaul

Clyne Urges End to 'Bribery, Throat-Cutting' by Distributors

Victoria consumers today can anticipate a reduction in the price of carton milk of up to four cents a quart, which was strongly recommended Tuesday by royal commissioner Mr. Justice J. V. Clyne.

The commissioner's 12,000-word report on B.C.'s milk industry, the result of a 14-month study, was released Tuesday night here and in Abbotsford, where Agriculture Minister Kenneth Kiernan told Fraser Valley dairymen:

"I am prepared, with the support of the milk industry, to ask the Legislative Assembly to approve a new Milk Act, which will make it possible to implement the substance of the recommendations made by Mr. Justice Clyne."

The report, considered by government officials to be the most comprehensive study of the milk industry ever conducted in Canada, recommends a sweeping overhaul of almost every phase of milk producing and marketing.

It condemns government branches for failure to work together to prevent "appalling, disgusting, deplorable, and indescribably filthy" conditions in dairy barns producing milk for drinking purposes.

The commissioner's report upholds the Social Credit government's controversial decision to decontrol milk prices above the consumer level, taken in October, 1953.

And it supports the contention that lower milk prices to the consumer will benefit the entire milk industry.

On the question of milk prices, which in Victoria are higher than any other city in Canada (Vancouver is second), Mr. Justice Clyne said:

"Any increase in the price of milk to the consumer is likely to decrease consumption, and if it is possible to lower the price, it is likely to raise consumption, to the ultimate benefit of the producer."

He said milk consumption in Vancouver today is 52 pints a day per capita, and the B.C. average of .66 pints daily per capita is the lowest in Canada.

'Halt to Bribery, Throat-Cutting'

Mr. Justice Clyne recommended a system of quantity discounts, to halt bribery and throat-cutting by distributors, whom he said are offering ice-cream freezers and other equipment free of charge to hotels, restaurants, hospitals and "government institutions" in return for their business.

He termed these measures "devious methods" and "bribery," and said that in one or two instances, "payments were made to officials in order to secure the business of their companies."

"British Columbia is lagging behind other parts of this continent in modern concepts of milk-marketing, and I believe that the industry is due for a general house cleaning," said the commissioner.

An almost certain break for Victoria housewives is contained in the report, in a section in which Mr. Justice Clyne recommends breaking down the "artificial barrier" holding mainland milk, at lower prices, out of Victoria stores.

In Victoria, there is no price differential between milk sold in stores, and in milk delivered to the doorstep. Milk in glass bottles sells for 24 cents a quart, and milk in paper cartons for 26 cents a quart.

In Vancouver, Safeway Ltd. brought the price of store-bought milk down to 20 cents a quart, for both paper carton and bottle, when it entered the market with its Lucerne plant.

Milk delivered to the door in Vancouver costs 22 cents a quart.

Part of the reason for the difference between the Vancouver price and the Victoria price is that the fixed price of milk paid to farmers on the Island is higher.

The fixed minimum price to dairymen on the Island is $590 for a 100-pound can of milk containing 3.5 per cent butterfat, for sale on the fluid market. The mainland farmer gets $5.03, but has to pay freight charges across the Strait of Georgia to Victoria.

However, according to the Clyne report, Lucerne, and another Vancouver distributor, Shannon, "are anxious to ship milk to the Island in refrigerated trucks at a price which will enable milk to be sold in Victoria stores in paper cartons at about 22 or 23 cents instead of the present 26 cent price."

Licensing Plan Trade Barrier

Mr. Justice Clyne said strong representations were made to him by Island dairymen that Vancouver area milk should not be allowed in the Island market, except in the case of an Island milk shortage.

But, he said: "I am satisfied that on the basis of present (Milk Board) prices the Vancouver and Victoria area farmers can compete fairly for the Island market, and that it is economically unsound to try to support small groups of high-cost producers, whether they exist in the Fraser Valley or on Vancouver Island, by artificially high prices or by a licensing system which is capable of being used as a trade barrier."

He said the two firms had not applied for a licence to bring the cheaper milk across to Vic-

'TEXT BOOK' FOR INDUSTRY

Copies of the Clyne royal commission report on B.C.'s milk industry are being mailed to over 4,000 milk producers and distributors in British Columbia.

This was announced Tuesday by Agriculture Minister Kenneth Kiernan, who said the Clyne Report will become the milk industry's "text-book."

Mr. Kiernan said the copies will be sent out by mail in the next two or three days. Printing was done by the Queen's Printer.

tor because they were certain their application would be rejected by the Milk Board.

"I believe that the fear of the Victoria market being flooded by mainland milk is a bogey, raised by the Victoria distributors," said the commissioner.

He said Victoria residents are paying "a higher price for milk in stores than is justifiable," and that efforts to keep competitors out of the Victoria market through trade barriers, or through "an artificially high price" are detrimental to the interest of the public of British Columbia.

"If the Fraser Valley farmer can produce high-quality milk and ship it to the Victoria area more cheaply than it can be produced on the Island, then the milk should be supplied from the Fraser Valley," he said.

The commissioner said he had no doubt that there are many farmers on the Island who are efficient producers, and who will continue to supply the Victoria market, meeting the mainland competition head-on.

In summing up the Island milk situation, he declared that "if new legislation is proposed, I strongly recommend against any provision or regulation which would give the (Milk Board) power to interfere with the free shipment of milk from one part of the province to another, provided that the producer price is paid to the farmer, and that proper sanitary regulations are observed."

Mr. Justice Clyne's report tore into government administration of sanitation and inspection services.

"There is no doubt that the system of farm inspection in the Fraser Valley has broken down entirely, and is practically useless at the present time."

He said it is a "matter of grave concern" that provisions of the Milk Act have not been obeyed or enforced in the Valley for a number of years, "although there has been proper inspection and enforcement in the Victoria area and other parts of the province."

'Disgusting, Deplorable'

He said a large number of Valley farms are "in first-class condition, and are a credit to the community."

"But the conditions on others which are supplying milk for human consumption are disgusting and deplorable," said the commissioner, whose entire report is framed in frank and hard-hitting language.

"According to figures supplied by the livestock branch," he continued, "there are 3,511 farms in the Valley, of which only 710 were inspected in 1954, and some of these are shipping milk to the fluid market even though their licences specifically forbid them to do so."

He said some farms, one operating since 1919, have never been inspected, and that "there has been no co-ordination in the Vancouver area between the Milk Board and the Livestock branch of the department of agriculture, which is in charge of farm inspection."

Mr. Justice Clyne charged that Lower Mainland residents are drinking milk taken from cows with Bangs disease, which in humans is known as undulant fever.

"According to the evidence, the disease is quite common in the area, but no attempt has been made to quarantine or segregate, and there is no doubt that milk is being shipped for human consumption from infected animals, although it must be immediately pointed out that proper pasteurization kills the Brucella organism."

He said "there is machinery under the act to stamp out the disease, and it is difficult to understand the lethargy which appears to have surrounded the enforcement of this statute in the Fraser Valley for a number of years, especially when active presentations by producers, distributors, and usually consumers "is one of the major causes of trouble in the industry."

"It must bear the responsibility for the present large surplus of milk production in the area," he declared. "It has afforded approval to the inequity between producers... it is responsible for illogical multiple pricing whereby milk of the same quality, produced under identical circumstances, may have four different prices."

Several formulas were outlined in his report.

Another sore point in the milk industry... the division of the lucrative fluid milk market, came in for much attention in the Clyne report.

"There will be no peace in the industry, nor stability in the market under a system of government price control until the present inequitable division of the fluid milk market between producers of milk of the same good quality is corrected," said Mr. Justice Clyne.

He said that "since only milk of equally good quality which has been produced and graded in accordance with government regulations should be permitted to be sold on the fluid market, and since the government sets the price... it follows that all producers of such milk should have an equal opportunity to share the higher-priced fluid market."

Mr. Justice Clyne's entire report is geared to the contention that lower milk prices to the consumer mean higher consumption and that higher consumption means farmers will be able to market more of their milk in the high-price fluid market.

This contention is found in many sections of his voluminous report.

Particularly, it is found in sections dealing with the fixing of a price to the producer for his milk. He said that at present, the fixed minimum price "seems to have been the result of a certain amount of intelligence" (Continued on Page 18)

The farmers didn't seem to care who was looking over their barns, when assured the visit had something to do with government business.

gent guesswork," and a compromise between a number of conflicting pressures at public meetings.

The question of a minimum producer price caused the furor which led to Mr. Justice Clyne's appointment. Fraser Valley Milk Producers' Association, a co-operative distributing and manufacturing organization, and other distributing outlets, refused to pay the set price.

The powerful FVMPA cut down payments to members for fluid milk, but paid them a higher price for milk used in manufacturing.

Fluid milk sales are the most profitable to farmers, but the fluid market has been dwindling, while milk production has been climbing. The surplus is used in making cheaper dairy products.

Of 417,000,000 pounds of milk produced in 1954 in the Fraser Valley, only 184,000,000 was consumed in the form of liquid milk and cream.

Mr. Justice Clyne said the price of $5.03 for a 100-pound can of milk is "probably subsidizing a good many inefficient farmers at the expense of the consumer, and is not benefiting the good producer."

He said farmers who are running efficient dairy farms could probably earn more "if they were not hampered by the poor farmers who are sharing the volume of the fluid market because they are supported by the $5.03 price."

He said it should be the duty of the Milk Board to see that the fluid market is divided fairly among all qualified producers.

"It is necessary to establish quotas to control surplus, such quotas should be based on the proportion that the production of a qualified producer during the winter months bears to the fluid requirements of the whole market, and should not be based on distributors' pools as they are at present," he said.

In another recommendation, he said it is "essential" that all distributors, including the co-operative FVMPA, pay to individual producers the minimum price for fluid milk fixed by the board.

Mr. Justice Clyne recommended "market-wide equalization" which would result in terms of one producer price for all milk of the same quality, and all producers receiving the same price for the same quantity of the same quality milk. This would remove multiple pricing completely from the milk industry.

Below Cost Sales Should Be Banned

To protect the fixed producer price from pressure exerted by distributors engaged in "cutting each other's throats," Mr. Justice Clyne recommended a law to prevent distributors from selling milk below cost.

He said they should also be forbidden, "in accordance with their own request," from using refrigerators, display and storage equipment as bribes to get business.

Another recommendation calls for wiping out restrictions on the licensing of distributors.

"If any person or firm desires to enter the business of distributing fresh milk in any part of the province, he should be permitted to do so, providing he complies with all sanitary regulations and gives security satisfactory to the board to ensure payment of the producer price."

The Clyne report also recommended that any distributor should be allowed to sell milk at any price he wants to, as long as the price is not below cost. And further that the butterfat content of milk be set at the discretion of the distributor, with the butterfat percentage marked on a label.

"Pasteurization should be made compulsory throughout the province," said the commissioner, "subject to exceptions in the case of small communities where the cost of a pasteurization plant would be prohibitive."

Provision should also be made for a further exception in the case of raw milk dealers, who would be subject to special inspection and classification so that persons desiring to drink raw milk should be able to exercise their choice. Containers for raw milk should be clearly marked.

He urged the government to put teeth in a new Milk Act, to give the board authority to enforce payments to producers by prosecution and licence cancellations.

The final recommendation

'Shocking Conditions' Found on B.C. Farms

SUMMARY OF REPORT

Here is a summary of recommendations in the Clyne royal commission report on B.C.'s milk industry.

A new Milk Act should be introduced, wiping out existing duplication under which milk is regulated through seven separate statutes.

Prices paid to producers must be controlled, but de-control must stand at the consumer level.

The producer price should be fixed by a formula which allows for fluctuations in farm costs, and contains a supply-and-demand factor.

Sanitary regulations must be strictly enforced, and violators barred from the lucrative fluid milk market.

Fluid milk market should be divided fairly among all qualified producers, enabling new dairymen to go into business by giving them a share of the market.

All distributors must pay the fixed price to the producer.

Distributors should be forbidden by fair trade laws from bribing retail outlets and large buyers to obtain business, by giving away free refrigerators, display and storage equipment.

Licensing of distributors should be abolished to allow anyone to enter the field on a competitive basis.

Pasteurization should be made compulsory throughout the province, with exceptions only for small communities, and for raw milk dealers.

Milk Board should be given legislative authority to enforce its rulings.

If the government and Milk Board cannot devise a way of spreading the fluid milk market among all qualified producers, the government should drop price controls completely.

PUBLIC WHIPPING CURE?

Hoodlums Terrorize New York Family

NEW YORK (UP)—Nightstick-wielding policemen and public whippings were recommended Tuesday by the Queens district attorney's office to halt a three-week reign of terror against a family of four.

The family, so terrorized that the father quit his job because of nervous exhaustion and the son was secretly transferred to an unidentified high school, was given 24-hour police protection.

The desperate plea was made by Harry Jennison, sr., 52, of Richmond Hills, Queens, who said his family has been living in terror since his son, Harry, Jr., fought back and critically stabbed an acknowledged neighborhood bully in self-defence.

"We are going to move out of this thug-infested jungle as soon as we can," Jennison told assistant district attorney Francis X. Smith.

STABBED TWICE

The wounded youth, Frank Chiu, 17, has recovered from two stab wounds inflicted by Harry, Jr., 15, when after young Jennison said he was attacked with a garrison belt made by Mr. Justice Clyne is that equalization be carried out so that good producers are not called upon to subsidize inefficient producers.

Equalization would spread the share of the fluid milk market, and that in turn would spread the high prices paid in the fluid market to all producers of high quality milk.

"If the principle of equalization in this sense is not adopted, or if for any reason it is found to be incapable of adoption, I recommend, on the basis of experience of the administration of the laws of other countries which have been studied and on the strength of the expert evidence given before me, that the government withdraw from the field of price control," said the commissioner, "while still maintaining control of health standards and standards of sanitation."

'Cows Looked Like Scarecrows' Says Clyne; Inspection Lack Hit

Lower mainland residents have been drinking milk from cows covered with dirt, housed in barns described by royal commissioner Mr. Justice J. V. Clyne as "indescribably filthy."

The commissioner said in his report, which was released Tuesday night, that he found "shocking conditions" in visits to farms in the Fraser Valley.

"I saw animals which looked like scarecrows, covered with dirt and crowded into filthy barns where the manure had not been removed for days, where it was impossible to milk under anything like sanitary conditions," said Mr. Justice Clyne.

He said he was most impressed "by the appalling condition of the animals in these places."

'Saw Conditions of Filth'

"I saw conditions of filth which I would not have expected to find in any civilized country, let alone in British Columbia," said the commissioner.

He said he had later verified that milk from these same farms was sold on the fluid milk market in the Vancouver area.

Mr. Justice Clyne blasted the lack of inspection. "A number of farmers who gave evidence before me said that their farms had either never been inspected, or had not been inspected for five or 10 years," he continued.

He said that from evidence of expert witnesses, "I can only conclude that farm inspection in the Fraser Valley is an absolute farce."

Farmers who had their farms inspected, and had been blocked from the fluid milk market by inspectors, were selling on the fluid milk market anyway, the commissioner found.

He said he found many farms with spotted barns, and sleek, fat, clean cattle, but that health standards of the Vancouver area consumers demanded strict and rigid enforcement of sanitary provisions on all dairy farms.

Farmers who do not comply with sanitary provisions, and some of which appeared to be reduced to skin and bones.

"It is difficult to understand how farmers could expect to continue to produce with such herds under such conditions," he said.

"I saw partially filled cans of milk standing in a milk house which the farmer had not bothered to cap, and in one place I saw empty milk cans which were obviously being used from day to day, lying on a manure heap, where something or somebody had knocked them off a stand."

whose facilities do not pass inspection, should be barred from the fluid milk market, said Mr. Justice Clyne.

He said he had heard no complaint about dairies. The lack of inspection did not extend to Vancouver Island.

"The system of inspection in the Fraser Valley has broken down completely, and, as it is being administered at present, is practically useless," said the commissioner.

In his report, he said that between 200 and 500 Fraser Valley farms shipping to the fluid milk market have never been inspected, "and one can only surmise what conditions may be found there."

Five Provinces Can't Finish T-C Rd. by 1960

OTTAWA (CP)—Works Minister Winters said Tuesday he is prepared to accept March, 1961, as the date for completion of the Trans-Canada Highway instead of 1960 as earlier proposed by the federal government.

"We made the announcement at the federal-provincial highway conference after five provinces said they could not complete their sections by March, 1960, as stipulated in the federal proposal for renewed agreements. (See Page 3).

BETWEEN TIMES

By MONTE ROBERTS

I have studied with keen interest the reports about the report of Mr. Justice Cline on the milk situation in this province. And I have come to the conclusion something vital is missing.

I realize Mr. Cline has put a great deal of time and effort into painstaking research in preparing this report.

He has dealt thoroughly with the problems of the farmers, the dairy operators, the delivery men, the retail sellers, the ultimate consumers.

But he has entirely neglected the most important element of all.

He has made no reference to the problems of the cow. Possibly, like many other men, Mr. Cline has the delusion that cows have no problems.

Just because cows are inclined to stand around with a peaceful look in their big brown eyes, doesn't mean they are without problems.

I feel sure a little research would unearth many bovine problems, which should be corrected before we worry too much about the problems of the farmers, the dairy operators, the delivery men, the retail sellers, the ultimate consumers.

After all, which came first, the cow or the milk? If it weren't for the cow, there wouldn't be any milk, and therefore no milk problems, and therefore no need for a report dealing with the problems of the farmers, the dairy operators, etc.

I suggest we set up a new enquiry, immediately, to find out what the cow's problems are, and to do our best to alleviate them.

Among other things, we should find out if cows really like modern, sanitary barns, all sparkling clean and anti-septic.

I have a feeling cows would prefer to stand around in the mud.

Also, how do cows feel about milking machines? Do they not miss the personal touch?

And do cows really enjoy the way they earn their living? Do they like giving milk, or would they rather get into some other line of work?

Let us get the facts before our cows become psychological wrecks, fit only to produce cottage cheese for cottage cheese and (ugh) mayonnaise salads.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES

Employees' request for 20 cents an hour wage increase, union shop and four additional paid statutory holidays as workers at Ormond's Ltd. has been rejected by a conciliation board.

The report, concerning Bakery and Confectionery Workers' International Union of America, Local 267 (AFL), was signed by chairman H. K. Bate and employers' nominee E. E. Pearlman.

Percy Raymond, employees' nominee, in a minority report recommended a 10 cents an hour across the board wage hike immediately and a wage-opening clause for next May. He said the request for additional paid holidays was reasonable, but should not be pressed at this time.

Soldiers from Gordon Hotel and Work Point army installations led a campaign to refill the Red Cross blood bank today. When the clinic closed, 269 pints of blood had been donated and only 39 of these were from civilian residents.

Tender deadline is November 28. Sidewalk paving is planned on Cedar Hill Crossroad, from Blenkinsop to Braefoot, of 1,315 feet; on Richmond, from Lansdowne to Forrester, of 796 feet; on Carey, from Glenford to McKenzie, of 1,240 feet; on Carey, from Cadillac to Mount View High School, 1,065 feet; and on McKenzie, from Douglas west, 337 feet.

Norman Merriman, 12, 2620 Fernwood, will receive Victoria Y.M.C.A.'s Men's Club "Boy of the Month" award at the club's meeting in the Y Rural Room Thursday at 6:30 p.m. He is a student at George Jay School and a member of the Y.M.C.A. boys' department since 1952.

The Victoria Aquarium Society will meet tonight at 8 in Norway Hall to hear an address by W. E. Eglend, commercial fisherman, who collects specimens for the Pacific Biological Station at Departure Bay. The meeting will be open to the public.

Fine of $250 or 20 days in jail was imposed in city police court today on Henry Stevens, 2733 Shelbourne, when he pleaded guilty to a charge of driving while his ability was impaired by alcohol on Tuesday.

Police said he was driving north on Fernwood and went 45 feet along a boulevard before colliding with a parked car owned by police Constable George Buckle.

Sentence will be imposed in city police court Thursday on Ann Champion, 36, Victoria, charged with theft of articles under $50 value Tuesday from a local department store.

She pleaded guilty to the charge, which involves theft of a table cigarette lighter, quantities of meats and groceries and men's underwear, to a total value of $15.23.

Second Greek Freighter Taken in Tow by City Tug

Two Victoria deep-sea tugs have powerless Greek freighters in tow in the Pacific today after battling heavy gales Tuesday.

Island Tug & Barge's Island Sovereign reached the side of Ss. Adamas at 4 a.m. today. The freighter was wallowing helplessly out of fuel. A line was attached at 7:45 a.m., and the tow toward Esquimalt harbor started at 9:30.

Island Sovereign and Adamas were about 400 miles west of Swiftsure lightship when the tow commenced. Capt. Steve Fairhurst reported strong gales moderating today.

BIG FREEZE REAL BLOCKBUSTER

This is graphic example of what freezing temperatures can do to car engine blocks unprotected by anti-freeze. Numerous Victorians in the last week have gone through the agonizing experience of paying a whopping repair bill because they neglected to take simple precautions against weather. Cracked blocks, as the one above being worked on by mechanic Victor Gnam, are causing overtime shifts in some garages. Repair bill can run from $25 for welding a crack to $300 for engine replacement. (Times photo.)

FATHER ARTHUR VENADAM ... survived Red prisons.

PRIEST TELLS HIS STORY

'Brainwashing Didn't Work'

By TONY DICKASON

Big, easy-going Father Arthur Venadam laughs today, easily and without malice. He laughed also when a prisoner of the Chinese Reds—through two years of it which included the "niceties" now familiar to people of the western world in Chinese Communist treatment of prisoners.

"I made up my mind not to take it too seriously," the 56-year-old priest said here today. "Otherwise you go crazy."

He was brainwashed, but talking with the Nova Scotia-born priest, it was obvious the Reds didn't accomplish even a light ideological rinse.

He spent a year-and-a-half alone in a cell in Hangchow, alleviated somewhat by daily appearances before the "people's tribunal" to face charges of espionage. For the first six months he was incarcerated with two native priests.

In the cell was straw bedding; nothing else. He was forced to sit. When this became unbearable, permission could be obtained from the guard to stand for a few minutes. "One becomes dizzy just sitting," he said.

Father Venadam arrived here last week to be rector of the Chinese Mission on North Park Street. In appearance the 56-year-old priest appears fit except for his eyes. He can't even read newspapers anymore, and his glasses make eyes ache just to look at them.

This was the direct result of prison diet—rice, water and salt three times daily. "The lack of vitamins affected my eyes," he said. My weight? Oh, that was affected also. I dropped from 220 pounds to 125.

They are Ald. Geoffrey I. Edgewood, Ald. M. H. Mooney, Elmer D. McEwen, Mrs. Lily Wilson, Hugh Ramsay and Joe North.

Two candidates have announced intention to run for the one vacancy which will occur on the police commission—present Commissioner William Hamilton and Joe North.

They are the incumbents, Harold Whitfield and Kenneth Leeming.

Then all religious teaching was stopped as "propaganda." Father Venadam was confined by house arrest in a Red Chinese hospital. This went on for one and one-half years. It was dangerous to walk outside; school children stoned him.

Father Venadam was informed on this may have been the real basis of his arrest. He made no bones about what he thought of the communists.

When called back, Father Venadam said "yes, I'll confess."

PARLEY VOUS LITTLE ONE?

A selected group of grade five and six school children in B.C. will study French in the current school term in an experiment to determine whether French language classes should be extended to lower school grades.

Details of the experiment have not been worked out, education department officials said today. A group of teachers with the necessary language qualifications have been selected for the experiment.

Election Forum Planned

All candidates in Victoria civic election will be invited to attend a public forum at Central Junior High School Dec. 6 at 8 p.m.

The meeting, two days before the election, will be sponsored by the Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Each candidate will be allowed a short speech and then the public will be permitted a question period.

The forum is part of a Jaycee "get out the vote" campaign which last year won the local group a national junior chamber award.

Main election interest is expected to be centred in the mayoralty campaign, so far a three-way contest, with Mayor Claude Harrison, who is seeking a third two-year term; former alderman Percy B. Scurrah and city second-hand store proprietor W. A. Scott.

SIX FOR COUNCIL

Six persons will battle for two council seats and three candidates are expected to come forward before the nomination day deadline, Dec. 1.

They are Ald. Geoffrey I. Edgewood, Ald. M. H. Mooney, Elmer D. McEwen, Mrs. Lily Wilson, Hugh Ramsay and Joe North.

Fear U.S., Eastern Mills Will Cut Into Business

B.C.'s pulp and paper industry is facing stiffening competition from eastern Canada, Scandinavia, and the "dynamic" southern pine region of the United States, the Sloan Royal Commission on forestry was told today.

M. J. Foley of the Powell River Company Ltd., presenting a brief on behalf of the B.C. division of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association, said the southern pine region particularly is a threat to the B.C. industry and could place B.C. and Canada as a whole in the "restricted category" of producing only pulp of special qualities.

competitive in world markets," the brief said.

"This can only be done by controlling costs and fixed commitments in buoyant as well as in depressed economic periods."

The pulp and paper brief said its members are divided in their opinion of such subjects as forest management, forest administration, and public working circles, but "all members of this association are unanimous in their belief in the principle of the management of the forests so as to produce continuous crops of trees."

CLOSER Mr. Foley said the southern pine area "is closer to our markets, pays lower transportation costs, pays lower logging costs with lower capital investment, and manages forest areas with more rapid growth rates on an easily accessible and workable territory."

The pulp and paper association brief said "newsprint which comprises almost half of British Columbia's pulp and paper production is expected to become more exclusively home-produced by the United States."

"This results from the new competitive position gained by southern newsprint manufacturers since 1940."

The brief said the southern U.S. now produces between 40 and 50 per cent of the total pulp output of the U.S.

It said Canadian exports of newsprint to the U.S. "actually decreased from 89 per cent in 1950 to 81.8 per cent in 1954."

MUCH MET

It said much of the increased U.S. consumption of newsprint has been met by the new southern production.

"In taking the necessary precautions to ensure that sound forestry is achieved, B.C. must also ensure that the structure of forest management legislation is sufficiently flexible to allow this province to remain

New Canadians Urged To Study Government

Fifteen local and B.C.-wide organizations were represented today at a ceremony welcoming 13 new Canadians who received citizenship at the Bastion Street Court House.

The new Canadians were Chinese, Polish, Czech, Yugoslav and Norwegian. Some were at the ebbs of life; others were brisk, young and fresh-faced. There were three women.

Administering the oaths was Judge J. B. Clearihue. First came the oath renouncing ties with foreign sovereigns or states. This was taken individually, Interpreter Peter Wong acting as language-liaison for the Chinese.

The oath of allegiance was a big moment. Each took it solemnly: "I... swear I will be faithful, and bear true allegiance to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth, her heirs and successors... and I will faithfully observe the laws of Canada and fulfill my duties as a Canadian citizen, so help me God."

The Chinese took the oath in their native tongue through the interpreter; others spoke sufficient English to take the oath directly.

All then signed the roll of naturalization. Some of the Chinese had trouble writing their names in English. But as the biggest of the big moments came, when they actually received certificates of citizenship, all said, in excellent English, "thank you."

"My congratulations to you," said Judge Clearihue, "you are not only Canadian citizens now, you are British subjects, and Commonwealth citizens."

FELLOW CITIZENS

Canadian Club president Douglas Patterson spoke briefly. He addressed the new Canadians as "fellow citizens of Canada."

He warned: Beware of things that threaten our inherited freedom of speech and action. Study government and civic issues of the day, "so you will be able to vote intelligently."

Mrs. Lily Wilson, president of the Victoria Citizenship Council, who arranged the welcome, was chairman of the assembly. She introduced Miss Christine McNab, secretary of the IOOE, who explained, in simple terms, the Commonwealth union and Crown allegiance.

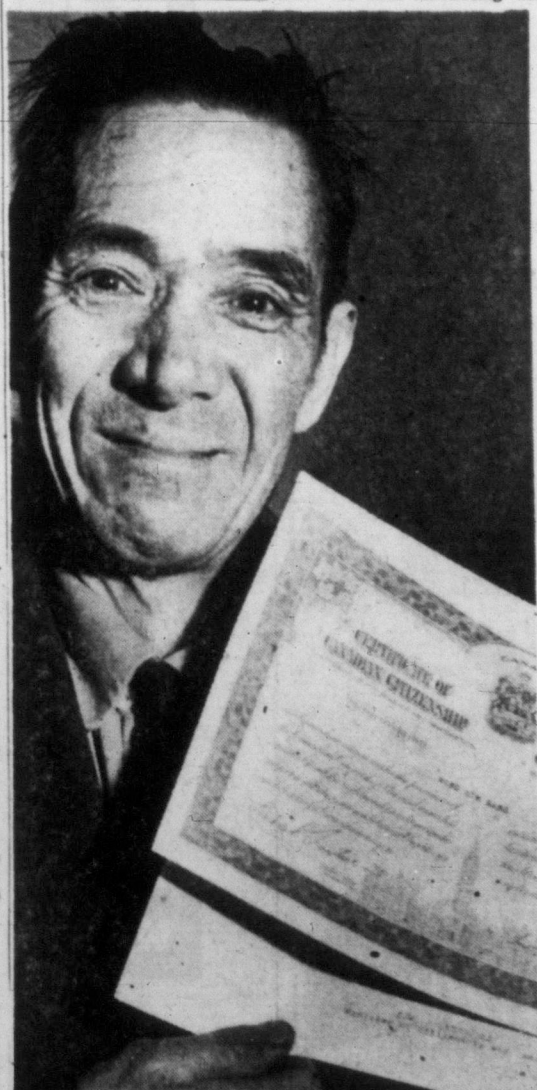

Groups on hand to welcome the new citizens were representatives from the Women's Canadian Club, Department of Education, Sons of Norway, United Services Association, University Women's Club, the Council of Women, Alliance Francaise, Business and Professional Women's Club, Native Sons of B.C., B.C. Drama Association, Lakehill Women's Institute, Canadian Daughters' League and the Victoria Burns Club.

The ceremony will be repeated monthly from now on.

ASK The TIMES

Q—Did the Royal Navy ever use Comox as a naval base? If so, when? H.D.

A—It is known that in the late 1800's the British navy at least had a rifle range on Gales Spit, near Comox. Files of the Times record that ships of the British fleet did some of their coaling at the port before the Canadian navy came into being.

HAPPY NEW CANADIAN

He's been here a long time, 43 years to be exact. Today Wong Gim Hang became a citizen. China-born Mr. Wong is 58. He married in China as a youth, and has seen his wife only once since, five years ago on a trip back. Next year, now he's a citizen, Mr. Wong will bring his wife and son to Canada. He's a marine cook, "and good, too," he said. Here he proudly holds certificate of citizenship presented when he took oath of allegiance today in courthouse. (Times photo.)

Labor MP Outlines Britain's Big Needs

Great Britain will stay one of the world's great industrial nations if its economy is formed by a partnership of labor, management and government, British labor MP George Darling told Victoria Kiwanis Club Tuesday.

Sponsored by United Kingdom Information Service, Mr. Darling, a former journalist and railwayman, radio commentator and author, is on a 14-day speaking tour of Canadian cities and left Tuesday afternoon for Vancouver and Calgary.

Bringing the national trading accounts out of the red by this means, however, would be a process promising long-term results rather than a series of short-term victories.

"We don't live in a perfect world. There likely will be some trouble along the way," the speaker said.

Labor unions would not stand in the way of such an economy, with profits and prices at a more or less steady level, the balance arrived at through labor-management consultation.

Mr. Darling was sure the Conservative government would support such a plan along with business leaders, many of whom already indulge in board-room discussion with labor representatives.

"If you're going to have democracy you can't help but let the workers have some say in it," Mr. Darling said, commenting that some of his colleagues refer to the idea as "democratic capitalism," compared with the Labor party's democratic socialism.

Many businesses are now consulting with unions on financial problems, how profits should be split, anticipated expansion and other activities, also making the same information available to the public, he said.

Alleged Killer Said Insane

BRANDON (CP)—Dr. Maurice Demay, a psychiatrist from the mental hospital at North Battleford, Sask., said Tuesday Guy Ferragne, 18, of Rivieres des Prairies, Que., was legally insane Jan. 9 when Rev. Alfred Quirion, 44, of St. Edouard, Alta., was shot to death in his car six miles east of here.

Ferragne is jointly charged with two Montreal youths with the murder of the Roman Catholic priest. The evidence of Dr. Demay corroborated the conclusions of Dr. Robert Genest, Montreal psychiatrist.

But on Monday, two prominent Manitoba psychiatrists said they disagreed with any conclusions of insanity regarding Ferragne. They testified the accused was not insane when, on his own admission, he pulled the trigger of the gun that fatally shot Father Quirion.

It takes your dryer only a few minutes to do the job that used to take you hours. You save all that time you had to spend carrying heavy baskets of washing out to the line, pegging it up, and taking it off again. And, you never have to wait until the weather is right—you can wash and dry, rain or shine, day or night. Things dry so quickly you need fewer clothes for the children—fewer cottons and linens for the household. You'll like the way your washing looks when it comes from the dryer, fresh, clean—all set to put away or dampened ready for ironing.

'OPPORTUNITY PACK' AT LEAST HAPPY

Scouters Work Wonders With Handicapped Cubs

By TONY DICKASON

Two of the small boys present hadn't the slightest idea what it was all about; they giggled unreasonably, but had themselves a wonderful time.

This was at a recent meeting of the "Sidney Opportunity Pack" of Cubs. The name given the pack is a pleasant one; actually they are retarded boys aged nine to 13.

From as far away as Elk Lake about a dozen of the handicapped lads descend on the small hall in Sidney once weekly. There, under the firm, gentle and understanding leadership of district "Akela" Winnie Bennett and Scout Freeman King the boys hit the high spot in their week.

START IN VICTORIA

The Sidney pack is an offshoot of a similar group in Victoria. Most of the Victoria boys have now advanced sufficiently to be absorbed into existing packs. But a year ago "Akela" Bennett—Akela means pack leader, taken from Kipling's Jungle Book—saw the need for a similar set-up for youngsters of the peninsula. It has now been in existence just over a year.

The pack started with four boys. Today, unless it's very wet and blowing hard, the usual dozen show up.

They arrive with war-whoops and leave the same way. The twosome handling the boys know that without patience, of a near-infinite variety, they are licked before they start.

In the rudimentary games organized, the kids do their best. But it's an unorganized best as few can concentrate more than a few seconds, if that. Without constant discipline they charge around like atoms on a chain-reaction jag.

Every week they are told the same things. Improvement is slight.

HAPPINESS ATTAINED

Despite the mental drawbacks, one outstanding thing noted among the little lads is they are predominantly happy.

Skipper, as he is known to district scouting, calls them "men" to their faces. They like this.

Perhaps it's a slight commentary on human nature that the boy in the group who is obviously the brightest is also the worst behaved. As the leader he causes no end of trouble. The others follow.

Though behind, and well behind, mental development of their various ages, the boys show individual talents; one will be passable at drawing though a dud at anything else; one will be good at games and a complete chump at other things; and so it goes.

This points up the fact that though mentally behind the eight ball, the youngsters can find themselves a sound place in society in later years, if fitted into that position where abilities lie.

PIED PIPER OF QUALITY to 19 million refrigerator buyers!

FRIGIDAIRE HAS ALWAYS BELIEVED that most homemakers want the best appliances they can get for their homes—just as they insist on the best building materials and a competent, trustworthy builder.

IT'S JUST COMMON SENSE THAT ANYTHING LESS THAN THE BEST IS FALSE ECONOMY ON SOMETHING YOU EXPECT TO GIVE SATISFACTION FOR A LONG TIME.

That is why visitors are welcomed at Frigidaire's great plant at Scarborough, Ontario.

We take them down the production lines and show them—far better than any advertisement or any salesman could tell them—why Frigidaire Appliances are worth more because they cost more to build.

It's the story of many "little things" as well as big things.

Such little things as baking a special Frigidaire-developed wax on Frigidaire Ice Trays so that cubes will never stick.

Such big things as the Frigidaire "Bonding" process that is the secret of Frigidaire's longer-lasting cabinet finishes.

YES, FRIGIDAIRE HAS ALWAYS BELIEVED THAT AN APPLIANCE SHOULD BE SKILLFULLY AND HONESTLY BUILT, JUST LIKE A WELL-BUILT HOME—NEVER BUILT DOWN TO A PRICE.

And because Frigidaire has lived up to that belief, 19 million refrigerator buyers have "beaten a path to the door" of Frigidaire Dealers.

You'll find long-time satisfaction that way, too.

Choose a Favorite Recipe And Bake a Christmas Cake

By PENNY SAVER

It may be filled with nuts and dates, or perhaps you may prefer the heavier, darker recipes... but whatever your choice of recipe, it will be brought out, along with mixing bowls and graduated-sized pans for the annual baking of Christmas cakes. Many recipes advise that the cakes be made weeks ahead of time. No, they don't go stale, but become mellow and the flavors are evenly distributed through the cakes. Of course, one of the most important things to have when baking time comes 'round, is a set of cake tins, especially for Christmas cakes and favorite fruit cakes. The pans with the removable bottoms are perfect, for after the cake is done, it can be pushed out onto a plate, with the bottom part of the tin still attached, so that there's no chance of ruining your cake by it sticking, or by it crumbling when being removed from the pan.

Made of lightweight polished aluminum, a set of three in graduated sizes is very reasonable. Round ones cost 69 cents, while square ones are 89 cents.

Still scraping frost and bits of ice from windshields. If you haven't a windshield scraper, this job can be a bother and very cold on the hands. For 15 cents, you can buy a clear plastic scraper in red, yellow or blue that fits by a flat hook on the back of the car visor. It's a good idea to have one around, 'cause many accidents are caused by obscured vision from frost and snow.

Frying pans, made of highly polished aluminum, are on sale in town for a low, low price. A set of four pans costs just $1.79. They have insulated black plastic handles that are easy to grip. For the small household these are perfect. The pans range in size from the one or two egg size to a two steak size. Saucepans in the same sizes are made by the same company. They, too, have the insulated black plastic handles. This really is a surprising price. These four pans will serve your family a good long time and are of a most convenient size.

For real fun at Christmas time, mantle, door and table decorations give our frustrated "talents" a chance to go to work. Blocks of plastic snow, frothy and light, are ideal for all types of decorating. Make scenes and cut-away designs with the inexpensive and manageable material. Dress it up with colors, fresh foliage and trimming and each resultant decoration will be original. Circles cost 15, 19 and 29 cents, while squares and rectangles, about an inch to an inch and a half thick, are 25, 39 and 69 cents each.

HOME LIFE WOULD CURB DELINQUENCY

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (CP)—Lack of home life is the cause of the present-day growth of juvenile delinquency. In the opinion of Mrs. Hilda Ross, New Zealand's minister for the welfare of women and children.

And by home life, she says, she does not mean the provision of seven or eight beautifully furnished rooms. She means a spirit of affection, parents taking an interest in what their children are doing, and exercising control.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

'Wings' Aren't Proper for Even an Angelic Lady

Even if you are an angel, don't grow wings! Shoulder blades which protrude "wings" will not help you fly where you want to go. "Wings" are just one of the detrimental results when you are round shouldered.

The most exquisite clothes lose their style and grace when worn by a woman with round shoulders.

Round shoulders spoil the silhouette and are harmful to health. This condition crowds the lungs and heart and places a strain on the entire physique. Round shoulders also can ruin an otherwise attractive bustline. Even if you have an adequate bust, if it rests on your ribs, it practically disappears from view.

If you have allowed yourself to slump and wish to correct resulting defects, you must do two things. In the first place you must take special exercises. You must also remind yourself of posture many times each day. It is impossible to correct this condition with exercise if you allow yourself to continue to slump all day long. You must really want to do something about it enough to remember it over and over again in daily life.

If you can sleep without a pillow this is also a good idea. The following exercise is corrective to round shoulders.

Lie on the floor on your back, legs straight, arms behind head with elbows fairly straight. Wrists should rest on a thick book. While in this position lift the shoulders from the floor. Hold for a few moments. Return shoulders to the floor.

Another: Stand tall. Raise your arms forward, shoulder height and shoulder width apart. Swing the arms down and back, pulling back hard, as if there were some resistance. Hold for a few moments. Return to starting position and continue. This exercise stretches the shortened chest muscles and strengthens the back muscles.

If you would like to have my exercise leaflet "Don't Have Round Shoulders and Flat Bust—Reverse!" send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 7 to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Earlier history of Metropolitan United Church WMS includes story of early missionaries to Japan, Misses Hannah and Eliza Lund, represented by sisters, Miss Muriel Wright and Mrs. H. C. Steele, second and third from left. Saying farewell to them are Mrs. H. C. Kinghorn, representing Mrs. W. H. Burkholder, left; Mrs. Jack Gillespie as Mrs. W. J. Pendray, second from right; and Mrs. F. E. H. James, as Mrs. David Spencer.

Seventy-Five Years of History Presented in Historical Pageant

Members of Metropolitan United Church Women's Missionary Society have arranged an historical pageant showing highlights from the records of the society's 75 years of achievement.

The presentation, to be given on Friday evening in the church, will depict scenes featuring the work of the society from its formation in Mrs. David Spencer's drawing room in 1888 down to its 50th anniversary celebration in 1938. Scope of the work will be shown in graphic form as narrators link the various scenes and tableaux together. Quaint costumes of early days, coupled with the colorful costumes of new Canadians and the representatives of foreign countries ministered to by WMS missionaries will add interest and variety to the story as it unfolds.

Distress at conditions under which Chinese girls were being brought into Victoria from China, decided Mrs. Spencer to form a women's missionary society in the first Pandora Street Methodist Church. She was assisted by such well-known early Victoria women as Mrs. W. J. Pendray, Mrs. Burkholder, Mrs.

scenes will be provided by the Metropolitan United Church choir, directed by Charles Palmer. The pageant has been written and is under the direction of Mrs. T. H. Johns.

'MRS. MIKE' FINDS TOUR 'TOO MUCH'

OTTAWA (CP)—"Wonderful—but just too much" was the way Mrs. L. B. Pearson Tuesday described the 12-country tour on which she accompanied her husband.

The wife of Canada's external affairs minister arrived home in autumn sunshine wearing a blue-grey tweed suit, camel-hair coat, fur cape and carrying a blue and white polka-dot rolled umbrella.

"I carried the umbrella with me most of the time—more for protection from the sun than the rain," she said.

Since the beginning of the year, Mrs. Evans, besides presiding over the meetings and affairs of The Canadian Home and School and Parent-Teacher Federation, has taken an active part in ten national conferences, including those of the Canadian Education Association, Canadian Teachers' Federation, Canadian Trustees' Association, C.E.A. Kellogg Project in Educational Leadership and the National Congress of Parents and Teachers in Chicago.

On her return from the East she will contact Parent-Teacher organizations in Chicago and San Francisco.

Miss Martinich Married In Port Alberni Church

Of interest to friends in Victoria is the wedding of Miss Marion Dorothy Martinich, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Martinich, Port Alberni, to PO Robert Douglas Mathewman, RCN, son of Mrs. J. Mathewman, Winnipeg, Man., and the late Mr. Mathewman. Father A. E. Leonard performed the afternoon ceremony in Holy Family Church, Port Alberni. Bronze and yellow chrysanthemums were placed on the altar and in the window boxes.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white brocade "satin princess" style dress fashioned with a flounce of tulle, and brocade jacket with lily point sleeves. A Juliet cap held her fingertip veil and she carried a bridal bouquet of red roses and white stephanotis.

The bride was attended by three sisters, Miss Patricia Martinich, maid of honor, wore a blue net and lace gown and carried a bouquet of yellow and bronze chrysanthemums, Miss Eleanor and Miss Evelyn were bridesmaids in yellow lace and net gowns. Their bouquets were of bronze chrysanthemums. All wore matching feather handbands. Best man was Claude Jutras and ushers were Mike Munro, Vancouver, and Ray Norman, Victoria. Mrs. T. Watson was organist, and accompanied soloists Mr. and Mrs. C. McLeod.

G. B. Dougherty, Vancouver, proposed the toast to his piece, at a reception which followed at the Golf and Country Club. An ecru lace cloth covered the bride's table, where yellow candles in silver holders flanked the three-tier wedding cake. Mrs. M. Munro, Miss Rosemary Dougherty, Mrs. E. Burton, Miss Eleanor Rundquist and Miss Marie Kocurek assisted in serving.

Leaving for a honeymoon trip through Washington and Oregon, the bride wore a blue lambswool tailored suit with white hat and gloves, wine-toned shoes and purse, and a corsage of white carnations.

When they return, Mr. and Mrs. Mathewman will live at 827 Lamppson Street in Victoria. Victorians traveling to Port Alberni to attend the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. John Weicker, Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Burton, Mr. and Mrs. R. Norman, Mrs. L. Trotter, and Mr. J. Clark.

The perfect solution is a party cake—but how many housewives have the time to fuss with elaborate party cakes? The answer? All—when they make them from a cake mix.

Any cook can come forth with the most luscious-looking and tasting cake imaginable—and so easily she'll be amazed.

SPICE ANGEL FOOD CAKE PACKAGED CAKE MIX

Pour 1 cup plus 2 tablespoons (9 oz.) of water into a 3-quart bowl. Blend into water 1 teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon cloves and ½ teaspoon nutmeg. Sprinkle the contents of package "A" over this mixture. Blend at low speed with electric mixer or rotary beater until this egg-white mixture is well dispersed and moistened. Scrape mixture free from bottom and sides of bowl with a rubber spatula or knife. Beat at high speed until egg whites are stiff, so that peaks will form when the beater is raised (approx. 5-6 minutes).

You can make any occasion a "special" one by serving this scrumptious Spice Angel Food Cake. It just melts in your mouth, ably assisted by the tempting whipped cream topping decorated here and there with walnut halves. (Recipe by Louise Ogilvie—Table setting by Eaton's).

Sift the contents of package "B," about one-fourth at a time, into the beaten egg white mixture, folding in lightly until all the flour mixture is blended in. Be sure to fold mixture—do not stir. Pour into ungreased 8 or 9-inch angel food tube pan. Bake in a pre-heated (375 degrees F.) oven for 30-35 minutes. Cake is done when top is golden brown and will spring back when lightly pressed. Cool cake in pan, upside down, for 1-2 hours before removing. Loosen cake from sides of pan and centre tube with knife and gently remove. Frost top of cold cake with whipped cream and decorate with walnut halves.

A Century Fruit Cake Time Proven Favorite

Century cake has been a favorite of Victoria homes at the Yuletide for any number of years. It's the largest and darkest of the fruit cakes, well suited to the large family or those who like to gift-box cakes for friends.

CENTURY CAKE

6 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1½ teaspoons salt
3 teaspoons cinnamon
1 teaspoon allspice
1 teaspoon nutmeg
½ teaspoon cloves
1 teaspoon mace
1 lb. glace cherries, halved
1 lb. citron peel, finely shaved
2 lbs. mixed ready-cut glace fruits

2 lbs. dates, dried
6 lbs. seeded raisins, halved
1 lb. ready-cut mixed peel
6 rings glace pineapple, cut fine
1 lb. almonds, blanched, lightly toasted and chopped
1 lb. butter
1 teaspoon almond flavoring
20 drops oil of lemon
12 eggs, beaten

2½ cups light brown sugar
1 cup dark molasses
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 cup tart jelly
Sift together flour, baking powder, salt and spices. Prepare fruits and nuts, set aside until cream batter is ready.

Cream butter, add almond flavoring and oil of lemon; add sugar. Cream together until light and fluffy. Add beaten eggs in flour additions, beating well after each addition. (If using an electric mixer, eggs may be added unbeaten, 3 at a time.) Dissolve soda in molasses, add to mixture, blending well.

Add about half the dry ingredients, blend thoroughly.

Sift remaining dry ingredients over fruit mixture, and with the hands, mix well so that the fruit is well coated with flour and separated.

Now pour batter over floured fruit, again using the hands, blend thoroughly. Break jelly into small bits with fork, add to batter; mix until evenly distributed throughout.

to cake, filling pans three-quarters full.

Bake in slow oven 275F. to 300F, placing a small pan of water in the oven with the cakes while they are baking.

Small cake will take 2 to 2½ hours; medium-size cake 3 to 3½ hours; large cakes 4 to 4½ hours. Makes about 20 pounds of fruit cake.

Bringing Up Baby

Hints Collected by Mrs. Dan Fisher
(Mother of 5)

We asked a bursting-with-pride father of 5 if he thought there was anything he could do better than mother. "You bet," he said, "when I comb the boys' hair, they look like little boys." Guess it's still a man's world.

Clever, these mothers! This from an ingenious correspondent: "When baby outgrows his booties, make 'em double-duty as mittens. Tied at the wrist they're so cosy."

Foot warmer. A pair of dad's woolen socks, slipped over Junior's shoes, will keep toes and ankles cosy when he's in his stroller.

'Delicate Rhythmic Exactness' Marks Recorder Recital Here

By AUDREY ST.D. JOHNSON

The rarified atmosphere of little-known 16th and 17th century music played on an antique instrument and the delicate subtleties of the French art song pervaded the Empress Hotel ballroom Tuesday evening.

Victoria Musical Art Society, for its second monthly recital, presented Britta Runge playing the recorders and Winona Denyes, soprano soloist.

The recorder is an angelic-voiced instrument capable of infinite sweetness and fair flexibility but little dynamic range.

It is easy to believe that few artists could perform on it to better advantage than Miss Runge. She succeeded in presenting on all three versions of the instrument—tenor, alto and soprano—a comprehensive understanding of its qualities and possibilities.

RHYTHMIC EXACTNESS

She brought to it a simplicity and devotion which is essential to its character. Throughout her playing there was a delicate rhythmic exactness that made, for example, the Gigue by Corelli a bubbling elfin dance and the Menuet of Leopold Mozart a thing of fine-spun grace and artifice.

One felt that the piano, especially a concert grand, was entirely too percussive and full-bodied an instrument to accompany the recorder's slight tone. But in the absence of a more suitable harpsichord, Boyce Gaddes, after the first two or three numbers, did an excellent and sympathetic job.

This reviewer has listened to Miss Denyes before on several occasions and always with pleasure.

To a voice of pure, natural beauty she adds a quick musical intelligence and exquisite taste.

A group of Bergettes and songs of Duparc and Debussy, together with three arias from operas of Massenet, Gounod and Debussy, made up her part of the program.

ARTISTIC TRUTH

While at least two of the latter—the Alceste aria, "Divinites du Styx," and Lia's Recitative and Aria from "L'Enfant Prodigue"—had moments of great beauty and artistic truth, Miss Denyes was at her best in the art songs, where her somewhat remote style was a fitting subjugation to the moods of the music.

There is almost too much effect of academic purity in the singer's tone and approach to give a really satisfying interpretation of the more positive emotions of the operatic genre. All Miss Denyes' sounds are not uniform in production but she is never guilty of an unpleasant sound or a tasteless phrase. At her best, which she gives us frequently, her voice is as lovely a thing as one could wish to hear.

She was accompanied with fine artistry and keen understanding by Malcolm Hamilton.

Magistrate Rejects Plea By Pianist

VANCOUVER (CP) — Aladar Ecsedy, 27, Hungarian-born concert pianist, tearfully asked for "another chance" after pleading guilty Tuesday to two charges of obtaining $1,400 by false pretences here a year ago.

Ecsedy, picked up on the charges in Winnipeg last week, told magistrate Thomas Dohm he was arrested two hours after he completed arrangements to stage a concert in the Manitoba capital.

The concert is scheduled for Friday and the tickets are sold out, he said.

He asked for a suspended sentence so he could return to Winnipeg to perform.

The magistrate refused the request but remanded Ecsedy to next Monday so his story can be checked.

Bank Manager Hero as Police Capture Thugs

INVERNESS, Que. (BUP)—A determined banker was being hailed as a hero today after he helped capture the holdup pair who robbed his branch of the Royal Bank of Canada Tuesday of a reported $20,000.

Marcel Cote, 30, and Huguette Thivierge, 21, both of Drummondville, were scheduled to be arraigned in Thetford Mines today.

Bank manager John Cruikshank told police that he and two other employees were alone in the bank when Cote and his pretty companion came in waving guns just before closing time. He said they forced them to lie down, and Cote tied them up while the girl covered them with a gun.

The pair scooped up about $20,000 and fled to a waiting automobile. Cruikshank said he freed himself, grabbed a revolver, called and fired five shots at the fleeing bandits. After calling the police, he commandeered a neighbor's car and gave chase. Two police officers followed Cruikshank and their rifle fire finally stopped the getaway car after an 80-mile-an-hour chase about 17 miles outside of town.

Cote and his girl friend gave up without a struggle when four rifle bullets punctured the gas tank of their car.

Boost in Wheat Loans Urged by Alberta Liberals

MEDICINE HAT, Alta. (CP)—The Medicine Hat Federal Liberal Constituency Association Tuesday adopted a resolution urging the federal government to increase the amount of farm wheat loans from $1,500 to $5,000. The resolution also asked a reduction in the interest rate on such government-guaranteed loans from 5 per cent to 4 per cent.

78,500-Lb. Trailer For Kitimat Project

WOODSTOCK, Ont. (CP)—A mammoth machinery trailer, believed the largest of its kind built in Canada, has been completed here for a 110-ton moving job at Kitimat, B.C. The trailer, built by Truck Engineering Ltd., weighs 78,500 pounds and has a payload capacity of 220,000 pounds. Ordered by Aluminum Company of Canada to move a 110-ton transformer, it measures 50 by 10 feet and is supported by 34 tires.

Half of 20,000 Canadians In Britain Need Fare Home

By ARCH MACKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Many a Canadian serviceman, influenced by a British bride or a plain hankering for the life, stayed put in Blighty after the Second World War or hurried back after discharge.

Now there is evidence that a large number of them—perhaps 50 per cent or more—would go back if they could. But they haven't got the money.

This picture emerges from facts supplied by personnel of the Department of Veterans Affairs here, from ex-servicemen's associations and from some of the expatriate soldiers, sailors and airmen.

It is not known exactly how many Canadians made Britain their home, but the favored figure is 20,000-odd. Many of the would-be travellers are the younger men, and there is some doubt whether all of them would be satisfied once they got back.

STEADY INQUIRIES

Nevertheless, there has been a "steady" run of inquiries at the DVA offices here.

"I estimate that I have had an average of five callers a day over the last several years on what can be done about getting back," said one DVA official. "I figure that for every caller there are two or more who don't bother."

"We can give them advice, and all the assistance to which they are entitled as Canadian veterans, but we can't pay their passages home."

Says a colleague: "I'd say quite a few would like to return—or think they would. Many times they are dissatisfied when they get there. They miss the easier British 'tempo' of life. Some of them are destitute one day and in clover the next."

Why the change of heart about Britain? There are a number of reasons given.

LOST CAMARADERIE

Some are homesick. Others are influenced by the generally lower standard of living here, rising costs or Canada's reputation as a go-ahead country.

Some probably found that the camaraderie and zest of wartime Britain, in which they were warmly welcomed as visitors, didn't extend into the peacetime peace.

"They became just ordinary joeys," was the way one put it. "And jobs weren't that good."

"It was like a poker game. Some guys drew three aces and a pair of kings. A lot more didn't and had to settle for the going wage of £7 to £12 a week."

It is generally agreed that any veteran who connected with a weekly wage above that level has no regrets.

SETTLED DOWN

Toronto-born George Jordan, London publican of the Horse and Groom in Knightsbridge, is an example. George went back to Canada after serving with the Canadian army, didn't like it and held a variety of jobs in this country before settling down behind the bar with his English wife, Maisie.

"I get a lot of Canadian veterans in here," says George. "Some of them would go back, but the older fellows are settled. There are lots of jobs around."

"Me? I'm in business. Just added a third hand to the staff. You don't see anybody in business wanting to go back."

Barney Gross, who's belied his British birth with a voice as Canadian as a Prairie quarter section, emigrated as a youngster and returned after his service career, but chose security and returned to this country.

Says Barney, a free-lance photographer and press officer for the 2,000-member Canadian Veterans' Association in the United Kingdom: "How's business? Could be better, but I'm getting by."

WIVES BLAMED

"Sure a lot of us would go back if we had the money, but not me. One of the special type of cases is the British-born chap like myself who fought in either war. Now he's settled here, perhaps drawing a Canadian pension, but he finds he can't emigrate because of his health. Canada won't have him."

Some DVA personnel tend to feel that English wives who have tasted the Canadian standard of living are behind queries about returning.

"They remember those Canadian amenities," said one. "Sure, council housing is cheap here at 25 to 35 shillings a week—if you can get that kind of dwelling. But look at the basic standard-of-living costs. There isn't a lot of difference between the two countries."

"Take eggs. At sixpence each, they are just about the same in Montreal and London."

Canadian veterans who want to get back to Canada have to do it themselves. This strikes some Canadians here as ironic at a time when Britons receive assisted passages.

RCMP Press Sea Search For Fisherman

RCMP today continued the search for the body of a fourth man believed to have been aboard the fishboat Westerner in which the bodies of his three companions were found Monday.

The Westerner was beached on Saturna Island, and the three other men were pronounced dead of gas poisoning by Victoria coroner Dr. E. C. Hart.

An RCMP spokesman said today: "It's like looking for the proverbial needle in the haystack, but our patrol boat is still on the job."

Bodies found aboard the boat were identified Tuesday as those of Marian Govorchin, the owner; Bob Sulica and Joe Martinic, all of Vancouver.

The man still unaccounted for is Ed Jones, also of Vancouver.

The three who have been identified were believed to have been asleep when overcome by fumes from the engine.

Intervention In Mill Strike Asked by Mayors

The provincial government has been asked to intervene in a 10-day strike of 170 International Union of Operating Engineers (AFL) members which has thrown thousands of loggers, mill operators and longshoremen out of work on Vancouver Island and the mainland.

Mayors of Alberni and Port Alberni appealed today to Premier W. A. C. Bennett and Labor Minister Lyle Wicks to step into the strike picture.

The mayors said business of their communities is being paralyzed by the strike, which began Nov. 6.

Mr. Wicks and the premier were unavailable for comment.

ALDERMANIC CANDIDATE ALD. GEOFFREY I. EDGE, LOW:

"I am in favor of some support for the Art Gallery, the symphony and the SPCA, but I do feel it should be done on a per capita basis, with the three outside municipalities sharing."

"The SPCA and the Art Gallery really request to be tax free, but as the city cannot legally do this, they ask for the same amount as their taxes, in the form of a donation."

"The Victoria Symphony Orchestra is educational and cultural and adds to the prestige of the city and should be supported by the city and outside municipalities on a per capita basis."

ALDERMANIC CANDIDATE ELMER D. McEWEN:

"The Arts Centre has taxes to pay on its property and it needs a grant more than the other two groups. If it were located in Beacon Hill Park it could perhaps become self-supporting."

"The SPCA should be made self-supporting by allowing it to take over the city pound."

"If the orchestra were made more attractive and not such an exclusive club, it would probably be self-supporting too. If they were just starting out it might be different, but they've been around for years haven't they? They've got to sell themselves to the public."

ALDERMANIC CANDIDATE HUGH RAMSAY:

Princess Sparkles At Gay U.S. Party

LONDON (UP)—Princess Margaret tried out some new shell pink gown, arrived at Charleston steps and saved a more sedate dance for Henry Ford II at a gay party at the U.S. ambassador's home that lasted into the wee hours today.

The princess, out on the town for the third time since she gave up Group Capt. Peter Townsend, bubbled over with merriment at a house party given by U.S. Ambassador Winthrop Aldrich.

"She was the liveliest person there," said one of the 200 guests.

LOCAL NEWS BRIEFS

A city man who told investigating police that he had been at a party and did not know what he hit was fined $35 or five days in jail and restricted to driving for business purposes only when he appeared in city court today on a careless driving charge.

Magistrate Henry C. Hall fined Gerald Neill, 1019 Collinson, and warned that he has very little sympathy for drivers who do not report accidents.

Police said Neill was involved in a slight accident with a parked car on Oct. 30. They located the car on Nov. 1 and said Neill admitted driving the vehicle.

Martin Vermaning, Cordova Bay, reported to city police on Tuesday theft of clothing and personal belongings valued at about $150 from a newly-rented house at 1144 Yates.

He told police he moved the belongings into the house last Thursday. A window was broken in a rear door allowing the thief to reach inside to release a door catch.

Thieves escaped with $7 in silver from a cash box after breaking into Fernwood Garage, 2320 Fernwood, overnight. Police said entrance was gained by a window at rear of the premises.

WITH A YEAR TO GO

U.S. Presidential Battle Warming Up

By GEORGE KITCHEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON (CP)—The campaign for the 1956 United States election is on the move, with both the Republicans and the Democrats setting sights on the White House, the most glittering prize in the realm of American politics.

Although the voting is still a year away, each week brings a quickening in the undercurrent of political activity, a rise in the tempo and temper of speeches, statements and stratagems aimed at winning support in November, 1956.

For the Republicans, it is a matter of retaining the presidency won so handsily by General Dwight D. Eisenhower in 1952, and recapturing the Congressional control lost to the Democrats in the 1954 off-year elections. The Democrats seek to tighten their grip on Congress and put a Democrat back into the White House.

ISSUES EMERGE

Favorite-son movements are springing up across the land and the first outlines of campaign issues, always difficult to define in times of prosperity, are beginning to emerge from the continuing war of words being waged by the country's two major political parties.

The doubt that ailing President Eisenhower will not run for a second term has sharpened interest in the campaign, now shaping up to be one of the most wide-open and longest in years.

Navy Team Beaten

TURIN, Italy (AP)—A Canadian navy hockey team was beaten 8-4 here Monday night by the Fiat Hockey Club of Turin.

The best player on the rink, however, was the Canadian team's captain, Petty Officer Joseph St. John, who scored twice. St. John, of Cornwall, Ont., is attached to the carrier Magnificent.

GUNSMITH DIES

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP)—David Clement, one of Canada's best gunsmiths, died in hospital here Tuesday. In his small workshop he built, rebuilt and tested guns of all types. The rifles of the Canadian Bisley shooting teams always came to Mr. Clement for reconditioning and final lining up. He was gun editor of Rod and Gun for four years.

Mitzi Collects Child Star Pay

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Actress Mitzi Gaynor, 24, Tuesday picked up $16,250 which has been accumulated since she was a minor. The money represented 10 per cent of her earnings impounded under a court order in 1947 as a condition of court approval of her movie contract.

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—A movie studio which let an oil company drill on its back lot is netting more than $1,000 daily as a result. Universal Consolidated Oil Co. Tuesday said it has completed seven producing wells on the 20th Century-Fox lot. The wells produce 3,000 barrels a day plus 6,000,000 cubic feet of natural gas. The studio gets an 11 2-3-per-cent royalty.

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—Movie actress Terry Moore Tuesday filed a $2,000,000 libel suit against Rave magazine for an article concerning her and the opening of the Hilton Hotel in Istanbul, Turkey. The complaint alleges that the October issue of the magazine contained a "malicious, false, libellous and degrading" article which held Miss Moore up to ridicule and contempt and implied improper action and indecent and unnatural conduct.

LONDON (UP)—Buxom actress Anita Ekberg arrived in London by air Tuesday and newsmen promptly asked her about reports she had insured her bosom with Lloyds of London.

The Swedish actress told them it was the first she had heard about it. "I get asked very peculiar questions," she said.

OCEAN RULES THE WAVES

Up to 7 TV Channels Beam in On Victoria; Expert Says Why

By PHIL LEE
Times TV Editor

Victoria is Canada's luckiest TV city. By all the rules viewers should be receiving only Channels 2 and 12. Instead they receive 2, 12, 4, 5, 11 and, in some areas, 13 and 9.

There isn't a city in the land that can boast such a selection of channels. In spite of this, however, Victorians are admittedly a bit baffled if their sets don't draw in most of these stations and are known to brood darkly if reception from Seattle's Channels 4 and 5 and Tacoma's Channel 11 isn't as clear and steady as a CinemaScope movie at a local theatre.

Truth of the matter is, if it weren't for the ocean separating Victoria from Seattle and Tacoma, not to mention the topography of the mountainous countryside, they, in all probability, would receive only Vancouver and Bellingham, according to one theory heard today.

EXPERT EXPLAINS

But here we will let the explanation of the phenomena fall to Les McGlade, one of the top TV technicians in Victoria. Before he came to Canada about four years ago, Mr. McGlade worked in the telecommunications branch of the Home Office, Whitehall, London.

According to Mr. McGlade, any sets stationed beyond a transmitter's 60-mile range is in a "fringe" or poor reception area. Therefore the only stations Victoria should receive good reception from are those of Vancouver (2) and Bellingham (12).

Then what of Seattle stations 4 and 5 and Tacoma's 11 and 13? For they are well outside the good reception area. "Owing to the choice of frequencies allocated to the TV transmitting stations," Mr. McGlade explained, "it is an accepted fact that signals leaving the transmitter will travel in a direct line of sight and not along the curvature of the earth's surface."

CREDIT THE OCEAN

"Therefore, utilizing a body of water as our line of sight we are assured that the bump in the earth's curvature disappears over the horizon around a figure of 60 miles. This, in turn, should be self-explanatory as to why good reception is within a 60-mile radius of the transmitter. How, then, do we receive signals so well from Seattle and Tacoma which are well outside this acknowledged radius?

"For this we must give credit to the ocean lying between Victoria and the American cities in question. Consider, first of all, that warm air is lighter than cold and since water is the coldest, there does exist a blanket of warm air at a pre-determined height. Therefore, when a TV signal encounters this condition it will tend to follow

Clyde Sailings Dropped by CPR

LONDON (CP)—Direct sailings by Canadian Pacific ships between Greenock, on the Clyde in Scotland, and Canada will cease next year.

A Canadian Pacific spokesman said the Clyde service is being cancelled to provide a direct express service between Britain and Canada. In future Scottish passengers will travel by train to Liverpool to join CP liners there.

The change means that two of the three Empress liners will be able to make a six-day crossing between Liverpool and Montreal. When the Clyde was included, the voyage took seven days.

SLIGHT CHANGE

Maxville, a village near Cornwall in eastern Ontario, was first known as "Macville" because of its Scots settlers.

Met Signs Windsor Girl

NEW YORK (CP)—The Metropolitan Opera has signed a 23-year-old Windsor, Ont., girl, Emilia Cundari, to its roster of singers. She is expected to make her first appearance in February in "The Magic Flute."

Miss Cundari was born in Detroit and studied art and music at Marygrove College there. She came to New York in 1953 to study under Edith Piper and later joined the New York City Opera Company. She has sung with the Toronto, Windsor and Detroit symphony orchestras and won a scholarship and prize at the Ontario Music Festival. Her father is a Windsor restaurant owner.

Battle Looms On Milk Plan

Emergency Meetings Called
By Dairy Industry Chiefs

Vancouver Island Milk producers and distributors will hold emergency meetings Thursday to discuss the impact of recommendations made Tuesday by royal commissioner Mr. Justice J. V. Clyne.

Mr. Justice Clyne's report on B.C.'s milk industry contained recommendations which would completely overhaul the existing marketing set-up on the Island, and permit Mainland milk to be sold in Victoria stores at substantial price reductions.

Free Flow Advocated

Mr. Justice Clyne advocated a free flow of milk throughout the province, and said Vancouver Island producers, who now receive a higher price for their fluid milk sales by order of the B.C. Milk Board, should be prepared to compete on equal terms with Mainland dairymen.

Tank Trucks Cheaper

However, tank trucks hauling of milk on fast ferries is substantially cheaper than shipping individual cans of milk.

Mr. Norton said it "is a little early" to say what might happen to the milk industry on the Island as a result of the Clyne report.

Officials of Victoria's four large distributor organizations, Vancouver Island Farms, Shepherds, Palm, and Northwestern, will meet Thursday to discuss the entire report.

Island producers also have a meeting scheduled for Thursday. Executive of the Vancouver Island Dairymen's Association will meet at Ladysmith to formulate a plan of action.

President Cecil Bulman, of Nanaimo, said it is possible the meeting will "make some plans as to how to bring our own recommendations before the provincial cabinet."

"I would imagine this report will have far-reaching effect on Island shippers," said Mr. Bulman.

Mr. Bulman said some small producers on the Island would be thrown out of business if the Fraser Valley product is allowed on the open market in Victoria.

"The Vancouver Island Dairymen's Association includes over 200 producers, about 90 per cent of all shippers on the Island."

Mr. Bulman said the organization will fight the Clyne recommendation to allow Lucerne and Shannon to enter the Island market with mainland milk.

Charles E. Walls, of the B.C. Federation of Agriculture, said "it would be premature to make any statement on the Clyne report until we can study it."

Meanwhile, Dan Nicholson, president of the Fraser Valley

More Cold Coming After 'Warm' Spell

Gale, Snow Misses
City, Heads South

Victoria's official thermometer climbed to a balmy 32 degrees today for the first time since the worst November cold spell in 56 years struck the city last Friday.

Weatherman William Mackie said he expected to see the thermometer reach 35 degrees at the warmest part of the afternoon, but predicted a minimum of 20 degrees tonight.

Snow that was predicted for Tuesday night stopped short of Victoria, Mr. Mackie said. A storm expected to bring higher temperatures and gale-force winds brought a sprinkling of snow to Comox, "brushed" Victoria, then swept on south to its present positions off the mouth of the Columbia River.

"The boundary of the Arctic air starts just off the Washington shore, curves outward to take in Vancouver Island, then turns toward the mainland to put the Queen Charlottes in warm air," he said.

There will be variable cloudiness tonight and Thursday, Mr. Mackie said, and a maximum temperature Thursday of 35 degrees.

Best hope for a genuine change lies with a storm now off the Aleutian Islands, Mr. Mackie said. If it follows the track of Tuesday's storm it should affect Victoria by Friday, he said.

City plumbers and garage operators, meanwhile, are recovering from a "madhouse" weekend, although the plumbers expect another rash of business with thawing temperatures.

ON THE RUN

"People are going to find that garden taps that caused no inconvenience when they were frozen have split," said a spokesman for one plumbing firm. "When they thaw, and water starts shooting all over the garden, we'll be on the run again."

One large firm had three girls busy doing nothing but answering telephones.

"A good many of our calls were from people who were afraid they were out of fuel oil," said one of the girls. "In 90 per cent of the cases they were all right—just panicky."

Garage and service station operators who merely laughed at customers who wanted anything other than cold weather assistance, find their wrecking trucks standing still today for the first time since Friday.

"This cold spell is the worst we've ever had as far as damage and amount of work is concerned," said Dave Ewing, service manager of Wilson Motors Ltd. "Money is going to be short, because there are a lot of cracked blocks to fix."

B.C. Electric came through the cold spell unscathed with the exception of a drop in gas pressure in the west end of Esquimalt at 9 a.m. today. Full pressure was restored within an hour.

"We welcomed a few fresh faces on board our buses during the cold weather," a company spokesman said.

Overheated stoves and chimneys were responsible for most of the close to 60 fires recorded in Greater Victoria during the cold snap. City firemen attended five fires

Campbell Again Cracks World Speedboat Mark

Hits 239.5 MPH As Bluebird Jet Cracks 'Water Barrier'

(Compiled from AP and UP Dispatches)

BOULDER CITY, Nev.—Britain's Donald Campbell broke his own world speedboat record today when he sent his jet-powered Bluebird II hurtling at 216.2 miles an hour over the waters of Lake Mead.

Campbell set the old record of 202.32 mph on Lake Ullswater, in England last July in the same jet-propelled boat. The Bluebird was clocked at 239.5 mph on one run over a measured distance of one kilometre and 192.9 on the second leg of the test.

In his record run last summer Campbell sent the Bluebird hurtling along at approximately 189 miles an hour on one run and 215 miles an hour on the other.

Today, on a slightly choppy course on Lake Mead, the Bluebird made two passes over the course, which measures five-eighths of a mile.

BAD LUCK OVERCOME

His victory was not only over speed itself, but over a series of mishaps and bad luck that has beset his venture since he came to Nevada over a month ago to attempt to beat his own record.

The 34-year-old speedboat racer's father, Sir Malcolm Campbell, was killed in a 1949 speed try while still holding the water record he established in 1939 in the Bluebird I.

Before today's attempt Campbell vowed he was "going to make it, or bust."

The two and one-half jet hydroplane, in which the young Campbell became the first man to shatter the "water barrier," was dismantled and flown to this country from London early in October. With it came Campbell's five-man engineering and maintenance crew.

SPEEDBOAT SANK
Misadventures began as soon as the craft was assembled and put on the water. Engine flame-outs occurred. Wind blew up choppy waters to postpone his runs. At one point, the Bluebird II sank and had to be hooked with grappling irons and towed ashore underwater, raised and completely overhauled.

Even today the record of misfortune continued, adding petty thievery this time to the list of obstacles Campbell overcame. During the night, somebody dredged up the five-eighths of a mile of underwater wire connecting the two official timing devices and made off with it.

Campbell's crew rushed to Boulder City this morning as the weather cleared and gave signs of permitting a record assault. They bought new wire, laid it and the run was on.

Priest-Killing Case
Now in Jury's Hands

BRANDON (CP)—A Court of Queen's Bench jury retired at noon to decide the fate of three Quebec youths charged with murder in the gun-slaying of a 44-year-old Roman Catholic priest Jan. 9.

The jury retired after Mr. Justice Samuel Freedman completed his charge which lasted one hour and 55 minutes.

Mr. Justice Freedman instructed the jury that it must bring in three verdicts, one for each of the accused.

Saanich Residence Saved by Firemen

A fire that broke out just before noon at the home of Mrs. J. G. Lawrie, 5557 Alderley, caused minor damage to the base of a chimney and burned up one wall, Saanich firemen reported.

Trucks attended from the No. 1 and Elk Lake fire halls. Mrs. Lawrie's two children, Linda, three, and John, one year, were with her at the time.

U.K. Still On Fence On Wheat

GENEVA (Reuters)—Britain will defer her decision on whether to join a new world wheat agreement regulating international trading until next February, when the 60-country wheat conference is due to reassemble, it was learned today.

The conference, which began today, will adjourn Thursday. Other important wheat countries outside the agreement include Argentina and Russia. It is understood that they are awaiting the British decision before reaching one themselves.

Discussions at this session have produced nothing conclusive, one delegate declared, and the vital questions of prices or limitations of quantities will have to be raised when the conference reassembles.

South Korea Asks Truce Be Ended

UNITED NATIONS (UP)—President Syngman Rhee's republic of Korea government called upon the United Nations today to declare that the Korean truce is void.

Ambassador Ben C. Limb, South Korean UN observer, also asked the general assembly to demand withdrawal of Chinese Communist troops from Korean soil. He estimated their numbers at almost one million.

U.S. Dollar Tops Canadian

MONTREAL (CP)—The Canadian dollar today fell below par with the United States dollar for the first time in four years.

Bank officials said that the last time the Canadian dollar was below par was in March, 1952.

At the opening of banks the U.S. dollar was quoted at a premium of 1-32 per cent in terms of Canadian funds, which meant it was worth $1.00 1-32 Canadian.

In recent weeks the Canadian dollar has fluctuated close to the value of the U.S. dollar and for a brief period about two weeks ago was at par with the American dollar.

Ship Afire in Storm

NEW YORK (UP)—Some 35 crewmen are fighting fire for their lives aboard an Italian coaler pitching in high seas and nearly hidden by snow flurries near the Grand Banks, some 1,200 miles northeast of New York, the coast guard reported today.

Overheated stoves and chimneys were responsible for most of the close to 60 fires recorded in Greater Victoria during the cold snap. City firemen attended five fires

Ready at last, he broke into the contractor's warehouse and loaded up 155 pounds of equipment and set off on his bicycle for the big killing.

At the bank, Willey's hack saw went easily through the bars of the rear window. "Once inside, he was satisfied that the shell of the concrete strong room would yield easily to his electric hammer."

GETS A SHOCK
He plugged in the hammer—and it went up in smoke.

The bank's voltage was 220, while the hammer's was 110. Shocked, scorched and dismayed, but determined to salvage something for his trouble, Willey shook down all the desks in the place and came out with precisely 17 bob in silver.

Warily loading his tools he started to pedal home. But a prowler came along and the police became interested in why a man should be carrying 155 pounds of tools on a bicycle in a futile manner.

With good behavior Willey will be back digging up those streets around the middle of 1960.

'MORE DEEPLY DIVIDED'

Big Four Wind Up Without Agreement

GENEVA (AP)—The Big Four foreign ministers' conference ended today with Russian and the Western powers more deeply divided than ever over the vital problems of German reunification and European security.

Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov, chairman of the final session, brought the conference to a close at about 6:40 p.m.

In almost 60 hours of debate during a period of three weeks, the Big Four failed to make substantial progress on a single major issue before them. The Western ministers blamed an unexpected hardening of Soviet policy for the breakdown. Molotov blamed the West.

The four began their talks here Oct. 27 in the warm glow of hope created by the "spirit of Geneva" which flourished during and after the Big Four "summit" meeting here in July.

They ended without agreement even on plans to meet again. The possibility of another conference was left up to future negotiations through diplomatic channels.

The final meeting was devoted to a round of summary speeches after the ministers had agreed on a communiqué, which merely confirmed their lack of agreement and said that each would report to his chief.

Macmillan said the West and Russia now are looking at each other across a "great divide." Yet he was not altogether discouraged.

"I feel there are many new forces in operation in the Communist world and in the satellite countries which they control. All this makes me wonder whether there is not something in a phrase I heard recently which said 'the Soviet government fears our friendship more than our enmity.'"

Before the closing speeches, the Western ministers had turned down flatly a statement by Molotov which he had proposed on European security. Dulles said that if the ministers approved it, it would have given "a false impression" of agreement here.

The action was noted by Molotov "with regret."

NO FUTURE PLANS

They ended without agreement even on plans to meet again. The possibility of another conference was left up to future negotiations through diplomatic channels.

The final meeting was devoted to a round of summary speeches after the ministers had agreed on a communiqué, which merely confirmed their lack of agreement and said that each would report to his chief.

Macmillan said the West and Russia now are looking at each other across a "great divide." Yet he was not altogether discouraged.

"I feel there are many new forces in operation in the Communist world and in the satellite countries which they control. All this makes me wonder whether there is not something in a phrase I heard recently which said 'the Soviet government fears our friendship more than our enmity.'"

Before the closing speeches, the Western ministers had turned down flatly a statement by Molotov which he had proposed on European security. Dulles said that if the ministers approved it, it would have given "a false impression" of agreement here.

The action was noted by Molotov "with regret."

U.S. Dollar Tops Canadian

MONTREAL (CP)—The Canadian dollar today fell below par with the United States dollar for the first time in four years.

Bank officials said that the last time the Canadian dollar was below par was in March, 1952.

At the opening of banks the U.S. dollar was quoted at a premium of 1-32 per cent in terms of Canadian funds, which meant it was worth $1.00 1-32 Canadian.

In recent weeks the Canadian dollar has fluctuated close to the value of the U.S. dollar and for a brief period about two weeks ago was at par with the American dollar.

Ship Afire in Storm

NEW YORK (UP)—Some 35 crewmen are fighting fire for their lives aboard an Italian coaler pitching in high seas and nearly hidden by snow flurries near the Grand Banks, some 1,200 miles northeast of New York, the coast guard reported today.

Overheated stoves and chimneys were responsible for most of the close to 60 fires recorded in Greater Victoria during the cold snap. City firemen attended five fires

Ready at last, he broke into the contractor's warehouse and loaded up 155 pounds of equipment and set off on his bicycle for the big killing.

At the bank, Willey's hack saw went easily through the bars of the rear window. "Once inside, he was satisfied that the shell of the concrete strong room would yield easily to his electric hammer."

GETS A SHOCK
He plugged in the hammer—and it went up in smoke.

The bank's voltage was 220, while the hammer's was 110. Shocked, scorched and dismayed, but determined to salvage something for his trouble, Willey shook down all the desks in the place and came out with precisely 17 bob in silver.

Warily loading his tools he started to pedal home. But a prowler came along and the police became interested in why a man should be carrying 155 pounds of tools on a bicycle in a futile manner.

With good behavior Willey will be back digging up those streets around the middle of 1960.

U.K. Still On Fence On Wheat

GENEVA (Reuters)—Britain will defer her decision on whether to join a new world wheat agreement regulating international trading until next February, when the 60-country wheat conference is due to reassemble, it was learned today.

The conference, which began today, will adjourn Thursday. Other important wheat countries outside the agreement include Argentina and Russia. It is understood that they are awaiting the British decision before reaching one themselves.

Discussions at this session have produced nothing conclusive, one delegate declared, and the vital questions of prices or limitations of quantities will have to be raised when the conference reassembles.

South Korea Asks Truce Be Ended

UNITED NATIONS (UP)—President Syngman Rhee's republic of Korea government called upon the United Nations today to declare that the Korean truce is void.

Ambassador Ben C. Limb, South Korean UN observer, also asked the general assembly to demand withdrawal of Chinese Communist troops from Korean soil. He estimated their numbers at almost one million.

'SELDOM IN THE ANNALS OF CRIME ...'

Ditchdigger Willie Got Nine Years for 17 Bob

LONDON (AP)—Bernard Willey, who police said nursed dreams of becoming a master criminal, was sentenced Tuesday to nine years for a bank robbery that went sour.

Seldom in the annals of crime has so much work been done by one man for so little—that is, 17 shillings.

And he didn't even get to keep that.

The story as unfolded in court:

Willey, 30-year-old pick-and-shovel man, recently decided it was silly to keep on digging up streets when a keen-witted fellow with a flair for taking pains could use the same muscles for cracking safes.

He decided a bank would be the most fruitful target.

Reasoning that such a break would raise a certain amount of noise, Willey toured around on his bicycle until he found the Mitcham road branch of Lloyd's Bank hard by a busy subway station.

There was so much noise there a man could hardly hear himself think, let alone the sound of a bank being burgled.

Next, Willey got a job with a building contractor and learned to use a hacksaw, electric hammer and various other tools.

Ready at last, he broke into the contractor's warehouse and loaded up 155 pounds of equipment and set off on his bicycle for the big killing.

At the bank, Willey's hacksaw went easily through the bars of the rear window. "Once inside, he was satisfied that the shell of the concrete strong room would yield easily to his electric hammer."

Government St. House Guttled by Fire

A two-storey frame house at 251 Government was gutted by fire early this afternoon.

Fire Chief Frank Briers, on hand with firemen battling the blaze, said it was too early to determine origin of the fire, or estimate of loss.

The entire upstairs of the house, owned by John B. Wilcox, was burned out. Fire had eaten away at least one-half the roof within 20 minutes.

Water damage from fire hoses was heavy.

Nylon Barrier Stops Jet Plane

OTTAWA (CP)—Lt.-Lieut. Bill Lawler today ran a 17-ton CF-100 jet interceptor into a barrier at about 100 miles an hour.

The barrier, made of nylon mesh and drag chains, stopped the plane in 930 feet. Then 27-year-old pilot from Lindsay, Ont., said there was a noticeable jolt when the jet hit the barrier but that the slowdown was smooth.

It was the 10th in a series of tests conducted at Uplands airfield here during RCAF development of a barrier to stop planes that lose their brakes or make an abortive take-off.

3 Youths Will Hang
For Killing Priest

BRANDON (CP)—A Court of Queen's Bench jury today found three Quebec youths guilty of murder in the gun-slaying of Rev. Alfred Quirion, 41, a Roman Catholic priest.

The youths, Guy Ferragne, 18, of Rivieres des Prairies, Que.; Claude Paquin, 18, and Gerard de Tonnancourt, 18, both of Montreal, were sentenced by Mr. Justice Samuel Freedman to be hanged at Headingley provincial jail next Feb. 28.

The 12-man jury deliberated for three hours and five minutes before bringing in three verdicts, one for each of the youths.

The verdicts and sentences were translated into French for the benefit of Ferragne, who admitted in a statement to police that he had fired the shots that killed Rev. Quirion, of St. Edouard, Alta., last Jan. 9, and Paquin. The two youths do not speak English.

The trio displayed no emotion as sentence was passed.

Battle Looms
On Milk PlanEmergency Meetings Called
By Dairy Industry Chiefs

(See full story of report, Page 17.)

Vancouver Island Milk producers and distributors will hold emergency meetings Thursday to discuss the impact of recommendations made Tuesday by royal commissioner Mr. Justice J. V. Clyne.

Mr. Justice Clyne's report on B.C.'s milk industry contained recommendations which would completely overhaul the existing marketing set-up on the island, and permit mainland milk to be sold in Victoria stores at substantial price reductions.

Most island officials contacted today refused comment on the weighty report, but others forecast a bitter battle to retain existing controls.

Free Flow Advocated

Mr. Justice Clyne advocated a free flow of milk throughout the province, and said Vancouver Island producers, who now receive a higher price for their fluid milk sales by order of the B.C. Milk Board, should be prepared to compete on equal terms with mainland dairymen.

Francis Norton, general manager, Northwestern Creamery, said the Clyne report "is bound to have an effect on the future." He said that "our present prices are based on what the milk board sets the price to the producer at."

But he said new methods of transportation, such as the fast ferry service across the Strait of Georgia that enables tank trucks to haul milk from the Mainland, are upsetting the existing situation.

"If they (Shannon and Lucerne) can bring it in here and sell it for less, it shows we are

Canada Moves
To Get UN Seats

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—Canada today prepared to introduce a resolution in the General Assembly's special political committee calling for admission of the five Communist and 13 non-Communist applicants.

Nearly two-thirds of the UN's 60 members were reported to have lined up behind the Canadian measure. Health Minister Paul Martin, chairman of Canada's UN delegation, said 22 had agreed to co-sponsor it.

At a meeting of the sponsors held late Tuesday, it was agreed that Martin should meet within 24 hours "with those concerned" in the Security Council to discuss parallel action. It was understood that his main discussions will be with U.S. delegates.

The sponsors will meet again today. The U.S. requested a Security Council meeting in accordance with a resolution passed by the assembly last December asking the council to make "positive

Big Four Wind Up
Without Agreement

GENEVA (AP)—The Big Four foreign ministers' conference ended today with Russian and the Western powers more deeply divided than ever over the vital problems of German reunification and European security.

Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov, chairman of the final session, brought the conference to a close at about 6:40 p.m.

In almost 60 hours of debate during a period of three weeks, the Big Four failed to make substantial progress on a single major issue before them. The Western ministers blamed an unexpected hardening of Soviet policy for the breakdown. Molotov blamed the West.

The four began their talks here Oct. 27 in the warm glow of hope created by the "spirit of Geneva" which flourished during and after the Big Four "summit" meeting here in July.

Bluebird Jet
Boosts Record
To 216.2 MPH

(AP and UP Dispatches)

BOULDER CITY, Nev.—Britain's Donald Campbell broke his own world speedboat record today when he sent his jet-powered Bluebird II hurtling at 216.2 miles an hour over the waters of Lake Mead.

Campbell set the old record of 202.82 mph on Lake Ullswater, in England last July in the same jet-propelled boat. The Bluebird was clocked at 239.5 mph on one run over a measured distance of one kilometre and 192.9 on the second leg of the test.

In his record run last summer Campbell sent the Bluebird hurtling along at approximately 189 miles an hour on one run and 215 miles an hour on the other.

Today, on a slightly choppy course on Lake Mead, the Bluebird made two passes over the course, which measures five-eighths of a mile.

BAD LUCK OVERCOME

His victory was not only over speed itself, but over a series of mishaps and bad luck that has beset his venture since he came to Nevada over a month ago to attempt to beat his own record.

The 34-year-old speedboat racer's father, Sir Malcolm Campbell, was killed in a 1949 speed try while still holding the water record he established in 1939 in the Bluebird I.

Before today's attempt Campbell vowed he was "going to make it, or bust."
